Billion Dollar Increase in U.S. Costs Despite Economy Pleas

Fund Bills Higher Than Present Fiscal Year's FIVE GIVEN O. K.

Slash in Relief Cash May Offset Part of Total Figure

Washington—(AP)—Despite a session-long economy drive, the cost of the federal government for the year starting July 1—exclusive of relief—was shaping up today to be almost $1,000,000,000 bigger than the current fiscal year.

The 11 regular appropriation bills already passed by the house, carry $694,445,987 more than for the present year. Several supplemental estimates, including $239,002,500 more for the army, still are pending.

Some of the increase, however, may be offset when congress votes relief funds for the next year. President Roosevelt has requested $1,762,490,000 for this purpose, in contrast to the $2,250,000,000 appropriated during the current year.

National defense, partly payments to farmers and flood control accounts for sizable chunks of the increase. A $200,000,000 boost was charged up against forthcoming decennial census, which must be taken in 1940.

Five of the appropriation bills have been signed by the president. The others are pending before the senate or joint senate-house committee.

Although the house held all but two of the measures, the senate increased the totals on several, notably when it added $388,000,000 for parity payments to farmers and disposal of surplus commodities. This appropriation has not yet received final congressional approval.

The house exceeded budget estimates in voting funds for flood control and river harbor improvements. It added $500,000 to the war department (non-military functions) appropriation bill.

A senate appropriations subcommittee, however, has eliminated the $500,000 fund, and a house bloc may try to allocate some of the new relief money for that purpose.

Former Governor of Oregon Charges Board 'Played Up to Thugs'

Washington—Former Governor Charles H. Martin of Oregon, asserted today that the national labor board had "played up to thugs" in Oregon labor disputes and thereby "made a bad situation worse."

Testifying at senate labor committee hearings on proposed amendments to the Wagner labor act, Martin accused the board of "meddling" and encouraging labor "outlaws."

Martin recited various instances of action which he said occurred as a result of A. F. of L. and CIO rivalry for dominance in the Oregon lumber industry. Seventy-five individuals, he said, were sent to prison for conspiracy or violence.

Chairman Thomas (D-Utah) of the senate committee, asked Martin if he blamed the labor board for the state's labor troubles.

"I lay it right at their door, most of it," the former governor, a retired lumberman, replied. "I am not a labor man, but I am a citizen."

Rivalry between the two labor organizations, he added, "was built up and aggravated by the way the board acted in taking sides with the CIO."

Explosion Wrecks School; 30 And 40 Pupils Hurt

Akron, Ohio—(AP)—An explosion blew out a wall of a two-story frame schoolhouse in suburban Barberton today, injuring between 30 and 40 children.

Some of the students, bleeding about their faces, were taken to Barberton Citizens' Hospital and Barberton Clinic. Others suffered bruised legs, arms and bodies. None was burned, doctors said.

Hospitals said about five of the children were in a critical condition.

The explosion, ripping out the north end of the public school building, plunged some third and fourth grade pupils into the basement. Debris fell on others.

One teacher and a janitor also were reported injured.

The school, at Third and Hopocan streets, is one of several temporary structures used by the suburb for overflow pupils.

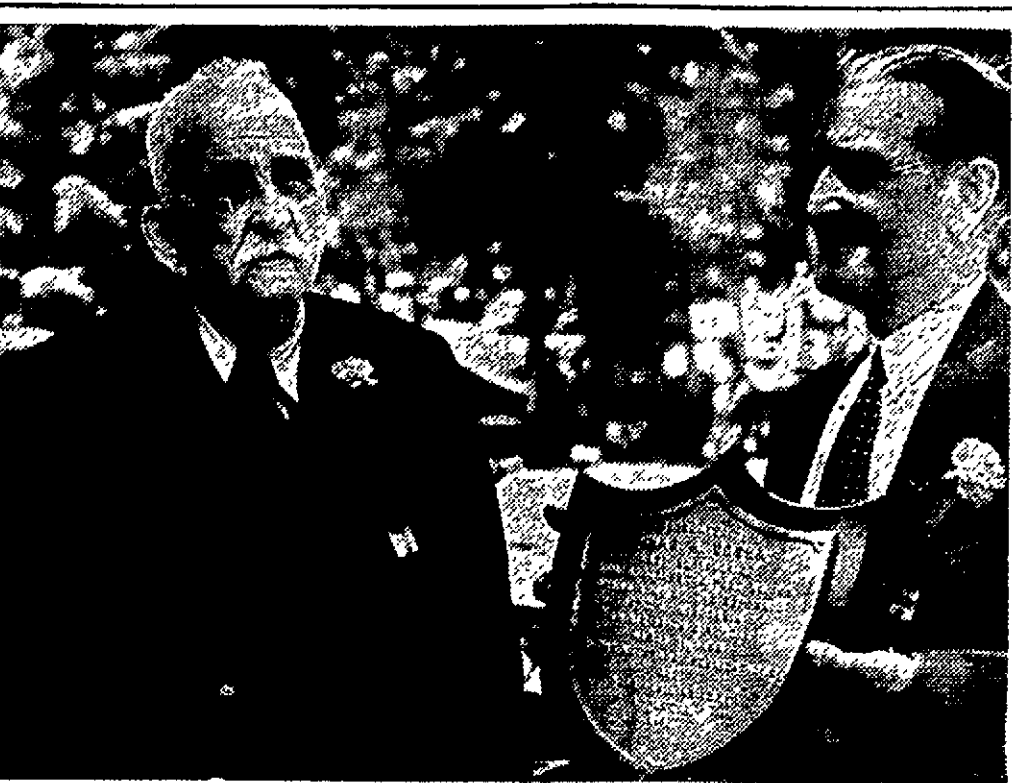

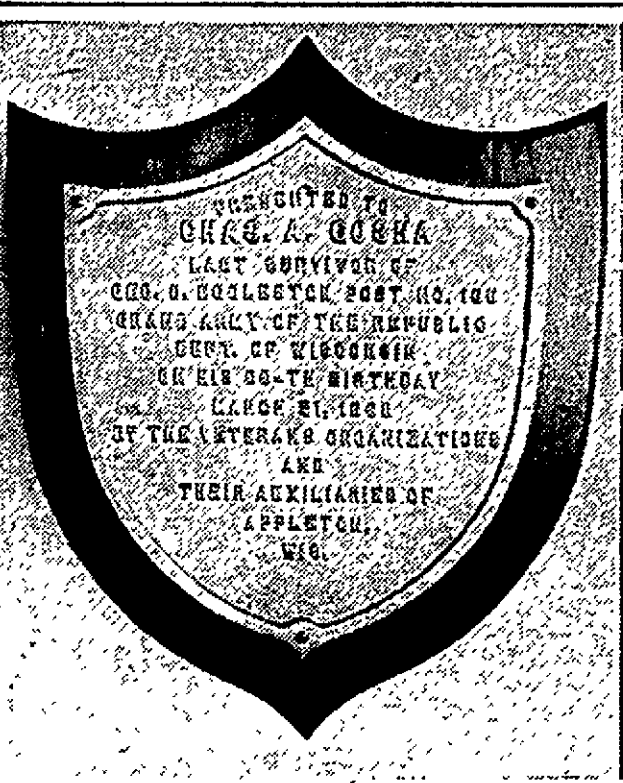

Some authorities expressed the informal opinion that a gathering of natural gas, which heaved the building, became ignited or some way to cause the explosion.

Neighbors described the blast's force as "terrific." A blackboard was blown across a street.

Approximately 75 pupils from the first through the fifth grades were in the temporary schoolhouse, a dwelling in use while new building was being constructed for central grade school.

Moseley Says He 'Warned' Craig of Plot Against U. S.

Retired Major General Is Witness at Probe of Un-American Activities

Washington—(AP)—Major General George Van Horn Moseley, retired, testified today he had repeatedly "warned" General Malin Craig, army chief of staff, about a plot to overthrow the government.

Moseley told the house committee on un-American activities that he received information of the plot in so-called "music scores" sent to him by James E. Campbell of Owensboro, Ky., a reserve army officer.

The committee had been told previously that the "music scores" contained information picked up by a waiter at the exclusive Harmonie club in New York and transmitted to Dudley Pierpont Gilbert, New York society figure.

The general clashed angrily with the committee over the method of presenting his testimony before he finally began testifying. He demanded, but was denied, opportunity to read a prepared statement.

Moseley, who attracted wide attention at the time of his retirement by criticizing the New Deal, had been portrayed by previous witnesses as the chosen leader of a movement to combat the alleged revolutionary plot.

He told the committee he first heard of the plot from Campbell, who used to visit him at his Atlanta headquarters.

In response to questions, Moseley said he attended a meeting at the home of Mrs. Rudyard Uzzell in Washington—(AP)—Senator Mead (D-N. Y.) told a senate banking subcommittee today that small business was "being throttled by an inadequate flow of credit—the most vital and essential element to its progress and success."

The New York senator was first witness for his bill to make billions of dollars of credit available to small business through bank loans insured by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Directing attention to government financing in behalf of home owners and farmers, Mead said the small business man now was mired in the same "no man's land of private credit" because banks could not make loans to business.

RFC insurance of up to 90 percent of loans to business, Mead testified, would avoid creating new federal bureau and "expenditure of public funds."

13 Persons Rescued From Madison Lakes

Madison—(AP)—Thirteen persons were saved from drowning in Madison lakes over the Memorial holiday following boating accidents. Twelve were pulled out of Lake Mendota by University of Wisconsin life saving crews and one man was towed ashore in a leaky rowboat by a Monona lake shore resident.

Soviet Foreign Minister Raps British-French 'Peace Front' Activities as 'Insufficient'

Moscow—(AP)—Premier-Foreign Minister Molotov skeptically and caustically described British-French efforts to build a "peace front" today as "insufficient and ineffective" and said "it is impossible to think now whether they really want to end aggression."

"That is why we must be vigilant," Molotov said in an address before the supreme soviet (parliament). "We must remember Stalin's warning about pulling chestnuts out of the fire."

Joseph Stalin, on March 10, said that soviet Russia would not be "dragged into conflict with Germany as a cat's paw" to pull British and French chestnuts out of the fire.

Rejecting the latest British-French offer as not going far enough—especially where the Baltic states are concerned—Molotov intimated that trade negotiations with Germany may soon be resumed.

Molotov said that the latest British-French offers showed that the principle of reciprocity (with Russia in any mutual aid agreement) had been accepted but "modified by many clauses so that it may be only formal."

He said no progress had been made with regard to the small countries on Russia's borders, Britain and France, he stated, "only think of those whom they have guaranteed."

"The Soviet Union is not what it was in 1921," Molotov continued. "We are compelled to remind the

Memorial Services Recall Sacrifices of War Heroes

Later came a period in which mercenaries were hired to fight for money. Some of these men, Hessians, were hired by England to fight the uprising in its colonies. When the Hessians learned that the men opposing them were fighting for an ideal, many left their own ranks to join the colonies, Dr. Cummings said.

"We have met here to talk of and celebrate the ideals for which men have died, the ideals of freedom and liberty," Dr. Richard O. Cummings, assistant professor of history at Lawrence college, and speaker of the day, declared.

He said that in the crusades men fought for the ideal of the cross.

With the American flag flying at half mast in a warm, gentle breeze beneath a cloudless sky, Appleton residents were reminded of the sacrifices of the war dead at the Memorial day services conducted at Riverside cemetery yesterday morning.

"When the ideal was threatened, men fought again to preserve the principles of 1776," the speaker said. In the Spanish-American war, men fought for the liberty of Cuba. Again in the World war, men fought for the ideal of making the world safe for democracy.

The young men of today must also fight—though not with bullets and shrapnel—to make freedom a reality, to keep their faith and trust in the ideals of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, and to preserve their personal integrity, the prerequisite of good citizenship, he said.

These ideals carry a responsibility he said, such as never saying things that impinge upon the rights of others.

Mayor John Goodland acted as president of the day, and Colonel W. H. Zuckelke as chairman. Charles Gosha, Appleton's only surviving

Broker Is Facing Federal Charges

Stephen Paine Indicted on 17 Counts of Mail Fraud And One of Conspiracy

New York—(AP)—Stephen Paine, former partner of Paine, Webber and company, one of the biggest brokerage houses in the country, was indicted by a federal grand jury today on 17 counts of mail fraud and one of conspiracy.

Paine, who was in charge of the concern's Boston office, was suspended April 1 from the New York Stock exchange for three years in connection with the investigation of investment trusts which preceded the inquiry conducted by the federal grand jury.

Named in the indictment with Paine were three Boston lawyers: Thomas W. Morris, S. Leo Solomon, former attorney for Paine, Webber in their Boston office, and Ralph H. Robb, Howard F. Hanshell, described as a stock manipulator in Canada, and the Northern Fiscal Corp. Ltd., also were indicted.

Paine was charged with transacting for Paine, Webber and Company loans made by the brokerage house to the Boston attorneys to finance the purchase of voting control stock of two investment trusts, Insurance Shares Corporation of Delaware and Eurus, Inc.

Paine, Webber has branch offices in numerous cities in the country. The loans, the indictment said, were repaid from the sale of securities taken from the portfolios of the two investment trusts. Paine, Webber and Company was not accused of any wrongdoing, as United States Attorney John T. Canill made plain in the following statement:

"The indictment of Stephen Paine in no way reflects upon the financial stability of Paine, Webber and Company, which is not a defendant in this case."

Fail to Find Trace of Richard Haliburton

Washington—(AP)—Captain Richard K. Turner reported today to the navy that four seaplanes from the cruiser Astoria had searched 12,000 square miles of the mid-Pacific vainly for Richard Haliburton and a crew of 13 men missing with the Chinese junk Sea Dragon.

Turner said the search had taken the Astoria within a few miles of Midway island, to the same area where the adventures last were heard from March 24.

Officials assumed the search was near an end. The Astoria was en route from Manila to Honolulu

Pleas for Peace Feature Services On Memorial Day

Some Addresses Indicate Congressional Fight Over Neutrality

Washington—(AP)—America's soldier and sailor dead, from those who perished on Civil war battlefields to the 26 entombed in a sunken submarine last week, were honored on Memorial day in ceremonies which echoed widespread appeals for peace.

In several of the addresses there were indications of the forthcoming congressional fight over neutrality proposals intended to keep the nation out of war.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio), speaking at Arlington, Va., near the tomb of the unknown soldier which King George of England will decorate with a wreath next week, opposed American intervention in foreign affairs.

He criticized the use of "methods short of war"—a phrase uttered recently by President Roosevelt—in trying to stop aggression.

Backs Roosevelt Senator Radcliffe (D-Md.), speaking at Sharpsburg, Md., where one of the Civil war's bloodiest battles was fought, championed the peace efforts of Mr. Roosevelt.

Other oratory of the day touched on present economic controversies. Senator Byrd (D-Va.), first southerner to deliver the annual address at the battlefield of Gettysburg, Pa., said class differences had replaced old sectional hatreds.

"What will it accomplish," he asked, "to achieve sectional unity, only to be divided by economic dissension?"

Off the New Hampshire coast, warships fired a salute and a coast guard plane dropped flowers on the cold waters covering the sunken submarine Squalus and its victims.

Roosevelt Confers With Party Chiefs On End of Session

Washington—(AP)—Back from a holiday rest at Hyde Park, President Roosevelt invited the "big four" from Capitol Hill to a White House conference today to discuss what congress has been doing and especially—what it is likely to do.

Particularly did he seek some prognostications about adjournment from Vice President Garner, Speaker Bankhead and Majority Leaders Barkley and Rayburn. The president is planning a trip to the San Francisco world's fair and, possibly, to Alaska, and the date of departure depends upon congress' calendar.

If there is a possibility congress may adjourn by July 15, the president said he would defer his trip until after that date. If the legislators appear likely to remain in session until Aug. 1, however, he probably will start for the coast on June 15.

The president told a press conference yesterday he would go straight to San Francisco after viewing the Great Smoky Mountains National park in North Carolina and Tennessee. If time permits, Mr. Roosevelt will go to Seattle after visiting the fair and board the cruiser Houston for a 44 day trip to Juneau, Alaska. He had no plans for the return trip to Washington, he said.

Grand Jury Called to Probe Fatal Shooting

Chicago—(AP)—A coroner's jury was drawn today to inquire into the death of Miss Muriel Campbell, 18, who paid with her life for a smashed watermelon.

Amos Pappas, 35-year-old watchman and clerk in a fruit store, was held as Miss Campbell's slayer. Police Sergeant T. J. Rine said he admitted firing a pistol in the air to frighten the girl and her companions.

With Helen Freilich, 18, and Harry Feigenbaum, 18, Miss Campbell went to the store shortly after midnight to buy some fruit. Miss Freilich picked up a watermelon and tossed it in fun to Miss Campbell, who dropped it.

Feigenbaum offered to pay for the damage, he told police, but in the ensuing argument Pappas drew the gun. Pappas claimed the youth broke his glasses and threw pellets at him before starting to run away with the two girls.

At Least 378 Dead In Accidents Over Long U.S. 'Holiday'

Green Bay Man Is Electrocuted in Bizarre Accident

Wire He Is Handling in Building Fence Hits High Tension Line

Everist Meulemans, 50, Green Bay, was killed at 6 o'clock last night at his farm on route 2, Kaukauna, when a wire he was handling while constructing an electric cattle fence came in contact with a high tension wire.

Meulemans, who lived at 201 S. Ashland street in Green Bay, was stringing the wire from his windmill across County Trunk U to a pole in a pasture. As he tightened the wire, it struck a high tension line along the roadside.

Meulemans apparently was killed instantly, District Attorney Raymond P. Dohr said this morning. A pullmotor, brought to the farm by the Kaukauna fire department, was used on the man without avail. Dohr, who with Dr. H. E. Ellsworth, coroner, was called to the scene of the accident, said there will be no inquest.

The victim of the freak accident was born near Kaukauna, living on a farm up to 14 years ago when he moved to Green Bay. He was a freight car repair man for the Chicago and North Western railway shop at Green Bay since 1916.

Survivors are the widow, one daughter, Isabel; three sons, Joseph, Bernard, and Gordon, at home; five brothers, August, Wrightstown; Theodore, route 1, Seymour; Felix, Kimberly; Frank and Charles, Little Chute; one sister, Mrs. Ray Hopfensperger, Appleton.

Funeral services will be held at 9 o'clock Friday morning at St. Paul Catholic church, Wrightstown, with burial in the parish cemetery. The body is at the Jungers Funeral home in Wrightstown.

Reich, Denmark Sign Agreement

Pact Promises Two Nations Will Refrain From Attacking Each Other

Berlin—(AP)—Germany and Denmark today signed a non-aggression pact in which they promised to refrain from attacks on each other.

The pact, a mutual one, was a direct result of President Roosevelt's peace message to Chancellor Hitler on April 15.

Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop signed for Germany and Herluf Zahle, Danish minister in Berlin, signed for the reich's small northern neighbor. The ceremony, at the foreign office, was brief.

Following President Roosevelt's appeal for a pledge not to attack 31 specified nations, Chancellor Hitler asked certain countries whether they felt menaced by Germany and expressed his willingness to sign non-aggression pacts with Germany's Scandinavian and Baltic neighbors.

Denmark, Latvia and Estonia agreed to negotiate such a treaty but Norway, Sweden and Finland preferred to maintain complete neutrality. Pacts similar to that signed with Denmark are under negotiation with Latvia and Estonia.

73 Young Mink, Valued At $5,000, Are Stolen

Cleveland, Wis.—(AP)—Dr. Zenas Williams reported to authorities yesterday that thieves had stolen 73 mink, valued at $5,000, from his stock farm here. He said the animals were sucklings and would die without their mothers.

Elderly Members of House Assured They Have Right to Vote on Townsend Measure

Washington—(AP)—The house began actual debate on the Townsend old-age pension bill today, assured that its own elderly members had a right to vote on it.

Representative Martin J. Kennedy (D-N. Y.) asserted that he had found that 134 members were over 60 and asked whether, therefore, they were eligible under house rules to vote on the bill, because they might possibly be affected by its provisions.

Speaker Bankhead, saying he assumed that Kennedy raised the point in good faith, ruled:

"It seems to be pretty well determined that where a bill comes up involving a general class, it doesn't prescribe or prohibit members of the house to vote on it."

Representative Cox (D-Ga.), the first speaker, called up the close

GETS STATE POST

William F. Ashe, (above), Kaukauna, today was appointed by Governor Heil as director of the new state department of government research. Ashe formerly was director of the state department of commerce which was abolished by the Heil administration. He was named to the job under the LaFollette administration.

W. F. Ashe Named State Research Bureau Director

Madison—(AP)—William F. Ashe, Kaukauna, director of the recently abolished state department of commerce, today was named by Governor Heil to head the new state department of government research.

The division was set up in the executive office to investigate, at the direction of the governor, "any irregularities" and all "phases of operating cost and functions" of state agencies "for the purpose of effecting the elimination of unnecessary state functions, avoiding duplication, reducing the cost of administration and increasing efficiency."

Ashe, who received $7,000 in his commerce post, will be paid $5,000 annually for an indeterminate term. His appointment does not require senate confirmation and he may be removed by the governor "at any time."

Resigned Post When the senate legislature proceeded with the abolition of the department of commerce, created by the 1937 special session, Ashe announced his resignation as director to take a vacation. He formerly was head of the Tallyman Pulp and Paper company personnel department at Kaukauna.

Administration sources said Ashe would begin his duties immediately.

Six Picket Lines at Allis-Chalmers Plant

Milwaukee—(AP)—Six lines of pickets marched in front of the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company plant today as members of the United Automobile Workers union continued their "indefinite work holiday" to protest a deadlock in contract negotiations.

Union spokesmen said the pickets would stage a 24-hour demonstration. They planned to split the pickets into three shifts and march about 1,500 would march in each shift.

Negotiations for settlement of the dispute have been suspended temporarily. Carl Gill, department of labor conciliator, said.

Gill said "some progress" was made in conferences between union and company officials yesterday.

Operations at the plant have been in suspension since last Wednesday.

Weyauvega Child Is Rescued After Fall Into River

Weyauvega—(AP)—Thanks to Martin Bey, Weyauvega storekeeper, Douglas Behn, 6-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Behn, Jr., escaped with little more than a good wetting when he fell into the water below the dam about 4:30 yesterday afternoon.

Douglas was playing with some friends when he slipped off the bank and fell into the water which is about 40 feet deep. Bey, who was fishing nearby, saw the child fall and plunged into the swift current to save him from drowning.

Highway Tragedies Again Take Major Part of Toll

85 DROWNINGS

22 Persons Killed in Wisconsin and Upper Michigan

Washington—(AP)—Violent death took at least 378 lives as the cost of the nation's four day Memorial day "weekend" from Saturday through Tuesday.

In the three-day holiday period last year more than 250 were killed, and in 1937 the total was more than 350.

The holiday fatality list was lengthened by hot weather that crowded beaches with millions of bathers and packed roadways with country-wide picnickers.

As usual, highway crashes were the chief agents of disaster, taking more than 205 lives. Eighty-five persons drowned. Airplane crashes, shootings and miscellaneous accidents accounted for the rest. Several of those shot were hunters.

Most spectacular automobile fatality was the death of veteran driver Floyd Roberts in a three-car pileup during the Indianapolis 500-mile speed derby. Roberts won the 1938 race.

Other Fatalities In Kentucky a man died from a snake's kick; in Colorado a boy was killed in a fall from a cliff; in Illinois an amateur fisherman was electrocuted while gathering angleworms with a home-made electrical device.

Oddly, no automobile death was reported in the metropolitan New York area yesterday, although more than a million thronged to the world's fair. Jones beach, Coney island and other resorts.

New York state led in motor deaths, however, with 17. California reported 16 and Illinois 13. Ohio, Iowa and Illinois had 7 drownings each.

Deaths by states from all causes: Alabama 2, Arizona 1, Arkansas 6, California 22, Colorado 9, Connecticut 7, Florida 4, Georgia 12, Idaho 3, Illinois 12, Indiana 20, Iowa 13, Kansas 5, Kentucky 14, Louisiana 1, Maine 5, Maryland 3, Massachusetts 8, Michigan 22, Minnesota 11, Mississippi 1, Missouri 13, Montana 1, Nebraska 1, Nevada 1, New Hampshire 3, New Jersey 17, New York 34, North Carolina 2, North Dakota 4, Ohio 21, Oklahoma 9, Oregon 3, Pennsylvania 14, South Dakota 2, Utah 5, Virginia 11, Washington 12, West Virginia 14, Wisconsin 18, District of Columbia 2.

Milwaukee—(AP)—Twenty-two persons lost their lives in accidents in Wisconsin and upper Michigan during the four-day Memorial day weekend.

Twelve were killed in traffic accidents and eight drowned as midsummer weather sent pleasure seekers out on the highways and waterways of both states. Two young children were scalded and burned to death, a man was electrocuted while erecting an electric fence, and a farmer was gored fatally by a bull. The dead (not including those listed in Monday's report):

Leo Wolfe, 18, Arcadia, Wis. Duane Clifford, 18, Tonawanda, Wis. George Tripplett, 20, Flint, Mich. Everist Meulemans, 50, Wrightstown, Wis. Dr. O. Reis, 55, Luck, Wis. ## German Soldiers, Back From Spain, Hailed at Hamburg

Goering Greets Several Thousand Legionnaires On Behalf of Hitler

Hamburg—(AP)—Several thousand German soldiers who fought for Generalissimo Franco in Spain came home today to a stirring Nazi welcome at this German "gateway to the world."

As five "strength through joy" ships bore them slowly up the Elbe, after several hours of delay by fog, the soldiers of the Condor Legion were saluted by Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering on behalf of Reichsfuehrer Hitler.

Goering stood on the bridge of the yacht Hamburg, beaming expansively and obviously proud of the men of his air force who were being hailed by the press as Franco's mightiest arm "in the defense of Europe against bolshevism."

Six torpedo boats led the sea parade into Hamburg harbor. The homecoming troops, in gray-green uniforms, were lined up in precise military formations on the decks.

Most of the men were of the air force which the German public was just learning had been used to ferry at least 15,000 Moors into Spain from Africa in the first days of the civil war started two months ago. Others were technicians and instructors.

There still was no official announcement of the strength of the German forces which started going to Spain in July, 1936, the month the war started, but Hitler's newspaper, Volkischer Beobachter, said the legion was kept at a strength of 5,000.

Hamburg was almost delirious with noisy joy. Thousands of visitors from all parts of Germany had flocked to the port, many of them to embrace sons and brothers among the troops.

They and sightseers swarmed to the port and river banks. After the morning fog, the sun shone brightly on a city in bedecked with the red, white and black of Germany and the red and gold of nationalist Spain.

Goering, Hitler's No. 1 aide, came here by special train this morning, accompanied by most of Germany's high air force officers. He wore his flying officer's uniform.

The return of the soldiers coincided with the twenty-third anniversary of the battle of Tannenberg, the greatest World War naval engagement which the Germans have set down as a victory over the British.

world of this, for it seems that even our neighbors forget it. Our strength has risen.

"It is time to understand that we will not tolerate violation of our frontiers."

"Now, about Outer Mongolia. According to our mutual assistance agreement we must help guard her frontiers. Our attitude is serious. We will defend those frontiers as firmly as our own. It is time to understand that all patience has a limit."

(Recent skirmishes between Outer Mongolian forces and Japanese Manchukuo troops along the Mongolian-Manchurian border have been reported by Japanese sources. Outer Mongolia is in the Russian sphere of influence and has a mutual aid pact with Russia.)

London—(AP)—Britain regarded Soviet Premier and Foreign Minister Molotov's address before the Russian parliament today as a rejection of the British formula for a three-power mutual assistance pact.

This was a terrific blow which completely reversed all expectations. Not only sources close to the British government but also diplomatic quarters generally had regarded Soviet acceptance of the mutual assistance formula—at least in principle—as a certainty.

The foreign office made no effort to conceal its surprise at Molotov's declaration. The French were equally stunned by the news.

Man Fined $10, Costs For Speeding in City

Maurice Mangan, 1712 N. Richmond street, was fined $10 and costs when he pleaded guilty of speeding this morning before Judge Thomas H. Ryan in municipal court. Mangan was arrested in the city Saturday.

Mrs. Winnifred Lindberg, 1100 E. Newada street, has paid a fine of $1 and costs for exceeding parking limits. She was arrested Monday in the city.

Cary Mine, Near Hurley, Gets Trophy for Its Safety Record

Washington—(AP)—The trophy for the best safety record among the nation's metal mines in 1938 has been awarded to the Cary iron mine of the Odeanah Iron company near Hurley, Wis.

The award was won for working 103,700 man-hours in 316 days without a lost-time accident, said Dr. John W. Fenn, director of the bureau of mines who announced the winners in the national safety competition.

The mine turned in a record showing no disabling injuries during the period. Disabling accident is one which keeps a miner from work the day after being injured. Honorable mention certificates were given to the following mines whose accident-severity rates ranked second to fifth:

Metals—West Vulcan iron ore mine, Norway, Mich., operated by the Penn Iron Mining company; James Iron ore mine, Iron River, Mich., operated by the James Mining company; Forbes iron ore mine, Iron River, Mich., operated by the

William Wolfe Wins Highest Honor at Senior High School; Besch Given Athletic Award

The distribution of scholastic and athletic awards this morning climaxed the first year of study in the new senior high school building and four years of work for 454 seniors.

Commencement exercises with Dr. Thomas N. Barrows, president of Lawrence college, as the main speaker, will take place at 8 o'clock Thursday evening in the senior school auditorium.

The craftsmanship shield, the highest honor which can be given to any senior, this year went to William Wolfe, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Wolfe, 414 N. Union street. Selection is made by the faculty on the basis of excellence in character, leadership, scholarship and service.

Wolfe was co-editor of the Talisman, a member of the Quill and Scroll, international honor society; a member of the student council, Masque and Book club and the German club.

The award is a tradition of the high school which dates from 1916. It is a bronze shield, engraved with the winner's name and mounted on a solid oak background.

Athletic Award
The winner of the American Legion award is William Besch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Besch, 626 N. Mason street. For 17 years the Oney Johnson post, No. 38, of the American Legion has presented this award to the high school boy who has excelled in scholarship as well as athletics.

Besch during his high school career was a member of the varsity football, basketball and track squads. This year he captained the basketball team after having been a letter man for two years.

John Trautmann, was selected as the recipient of the Elks citizenship award. Trautmann is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Trautmann, 1425 N. Morrison street. The award, which goes to the student who best typifies the ideals of citizenship, is $100 to be applied on expenses at any institution of higher learning.

Trautmann has been a member of the orchestra, has been on the basketball squad and was elected to Quill and Scroll society last fall.

Two Sophomores Win
The sophomore who shows the greatest promise for future achievement is honored each year by being chosen as the winner of the Spector trophy. This year, for the first time, two underclassmen were selected by the combined votes of the sophomore student councilors and the faculty sponsors. They are Edgar Thomas, son of E. E. Thomas, 115 S. Durkee street, and William De Long, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray De Long, 1007 N. Harrison street.

Audrey Lemmer, daughter of Mrs. Dora Lemmer, 417 N. Durkee street, this year received the $100 scholarship given by the American Association of University Women, which is to be applied on tuition charges at Lawrence college. Miss Lemmer last fall, in addition she has been a member of the Student council, the Talisman staff, the Clarion staff, the band and orchestra, and the Quill and Scroll society.

The German club plaque went to James Donohue, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Donohue, 711 E. Franklin street. Each year members of Der Deutsche Verein, German club, vote by secret ballot to select a member of the organization for this honor.

Donohue had the lead in the German club play presented last December.

Science Medal
Richard Elias, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Elias, 1020 N. Appleton street, was selected winner of the honorary science award presented by the science department to encourage students in research in the field of science. The medal is given to the student who has made the most outstanding record in biology, chemistry and physics. Wolfe and Trautmann were given honorable mention.

The annual award of the Lawrence college chapter of Eta Sigma Phi, honorary classical fraternity, went to Millicent Powers for her superior work in Latin. Miss Powers, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Powers, 1218 W. Spenser street, is a member of the Talisman staff, the Quill and Scroll society, the Girls' Athletic association and the Latin and German clubs.

H. H. Helble, principal, was in charge of this morning's program, and personally distributed the awards to the winners.

Copies of the Clarion, the school's yearbook, were distributed after the program. The halls were filled after the program with eager students seeking the autographs of classmates.

Moseley Says He 'Warned' Craig of Plot Against U. S.

Jamaica, Long Island, New York. He described her as "very much interested in the critical situation that exists in New York city."

He said he had gone there thinking it was for a private conversation with Mrs. Uzzell. The committee read into the record a letter he sent to Campbell saying a number of important people would be there. Moseley testified about 40 persons were present but denied any knowledge that it was to be a secret session or that the house was guarded by members of the German-American band.

Witness Angry
Moseley likewise said he knew nothing of reports that Mrs. Uzzell was active in dissemination of anti-Jewish propaganda.

The clash between the general, former commander of the army's Fourth Corps area, and the committee came when Representative Healey (D-Mass.) insisted that he confine himself to answering questions by the committee counsel.

"I'll bring this before the American people from coast to coast," he Moseley told the committee he first placed little credence in the reports he received from Campbell but when asked if he did not regard them as sufficiently important to refer to Craig, he replied hotly: "Don't you think I should?"

He said he had asked Campbell for permission to show the reports to Craig but was refused and told he could outline them.

When asked what Craig had done about the reports, Moseley said he knew definitely what Craig had done about one case but did not disclose the nature of the action.

The retired officer testified the army intelligence service agreed they portrayed a serious situation.

Used Another Name
Although he declared he had made no effort to keep his presence in New York for the Uzzell meeting secret, Moseley said under questioning that he had registered at the New York hotel under the name of A. B. Parker and then went to see Mrs. Uzzell for a preliminary conversation. Later, he moved to Hotel Pennsylvania.

The red-faced, sandy-haired witness said Fritz Kuhn, leader of the bund was at one of those meetings, together with a Mrs. Good, leader of a national defense committee of a group of Philadelphia organizations.

What was the purpose of this gathering? asked Rhea Whitley, committee counsel.

Patriotic Meeting
"It was just a patriotic meeting," Moseley answered.

"Wasn't it for the purpose of discussing the formation of confederation of these patriotic organizations with you as its leader?"

"Not at all," the witness replied emphatically.

He said the meeting's purpose was the same as that of other similar gatherings where people were "interested only in seeing this country continue according to its basic law."

Whitley drew from the witness an admission that he sent out "in the exceptional cases" copies of literature put out by certain organizations.

In a letter to James N. Wilkerson of Kansas City, Moseley referred to copies of four reports which he said contained information "frankly stated and authentic."

He did not identify the reports specifically but said they might have included industrial control reports by James True and "American vigilante" by Robert Edmondson.

Moseley said he had not heard allegations that both True and Edmondson had been engaged for years in dissemination of anti-Jewish propaganda.

The committee questioned Moseley at length as to how he determined authenticity of the reports he sent Wilkerson.

The witness said his use of "authentic" was "unfortunate" and that he had been trying to dispose of Wilkerson's request for information. He told Wilkerson the press gave an incomplete picture of world conditions.

Writer Thinks Franco's Peace Appeal Does Not Leave Hitler And Mussolini Holding the Bag

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

New York—(AP)—Spanish Generalissimo Franco's declaration at Medina del Campo yesterday that Spain doesn't intend to plunge into any war "adventures" might seem to leave Messrs. Hitler and Mussolini, who have gambled so much on him, rather holding the sack—but does it?

"I want Spain to become a fortress," was his actual statement, "but I do not want her to become a fortress to plunge herself into any adventures. I want her to become a fortress for peace. War goes far and involves the weaker countries."

I want Spain to be strong so she will be able to assure her peace. That is a clear-cut announcement of a desire for peace.

Beyond that it would seem to mean that General Franco intends to pursue a safety policy of non-intervention in the European crisis. There is no indication at the moment that he proposes to declare official neutrality, though it has been reported that he might.

Can Operate Freely
That is perhaps a fine distinction, even in these days when the ambidextrous language of diplomacy is flourishing. But a nation occupying such a position can operate pretty freely without getting into grave difficulties, if it moves circumspectly.

The general hasn't interpreted his announcement, but it certainly doesn't mean necessarily that he has deserted the Berlin-Rome axis, which has done so much to make him chieftain of the land of the Dons.

On the contrary recently we have had these straws dropped by the wind.

The newspapers controlled by Field Marshal Hermann Goering, Hitler's political heir, said the other day that the policies of new Spain will be bound close with those of the Berlin-Rome axis.

France has signed the anti-comintern pact, along with Germany, Italy, Japan and some lesser subscribers.

Spain has given notice of withdrawal from the league of nations, thereby following Germany and Italy and Japan (among others) out of the ornate portals of the marble palace on Lake Geneva.

Indebted to Axis
Besides these indications of friendship, the generalissimo isn't likely to forget the concrete evidence of the aid rendered him by Messrs. Hitler and Mussolini. Rome financiers estimate the Spanish bill owed to Italy at some $300,000,000. The indebtedness in cash to Germany hasn't been stated.

Observers generally have credited General Franco with playing his difficult hand shrewdly. His idea of remaining aloof from the present crisis can cause heartburnings in Paris or London, and there is no evidence that Berlin and Rome are anything but in approval.

A glance with half an eye at the map will show a weighty reason why Franco shouldn't officially espouse the cause of the Berlin-Rome axis, should that happen to be his leaning. Should the off-predicted clash at arms come between the axis and the Anglo-French brotherhood, England and France, presumably would have a chance to iron Spain out rather than face the axis could go to the rescue. That's a matter of geography.

In Good Spot
Under the circumstances, if Germany and Italy regard Spain as their ally, they could scarcely wish Franco to do otherwise than follow a course of non-intervention. Obviously a free and unhampered friend would be preferable to a declared ally surrounded by the Anglo-French alliance.

Actually Franco is held by many observers to be sitting in a good spot. Both sides of the European argument want Spain's friendship, for she is a rich and powerful nation, although naturally suffering now from the effects of her terrible civil war.

Spain is in a powerful strategic position, situated as she is at the gateway to the Mediterranean. She has a wealth of minerals. She has islands, and fine harbors both at home and across in Morocco, which might be superb naval bases. She would make a powerful ally for somebody.

Apart from this aspect of the situation, Britain is anxious to help Spain rehabilitate herself. That is partly a matter of making a friendly gesture and partly plain business. There is a vast amount of rebuilding to be done. The British would like a hand in it.

Court Approves Negotiations for Rail Agreements

Authorizes Receiver to Discuss Contract With Workers

Chicago—(AP)—The federal court authorized Receiver A. A. Sprague today to negotiate new working agreements with employees of the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee and the Chicago, Aurora and Elgin Electric lines.

The contracts Sprague proposed called for a 10 per cent decrease in salaries and a sliding scale to restore the cut as conditions improve.

O. D. Zimmerman, attorney for Local 100 of the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employees of America, said the union had been persuaded to see there was no amicable settlement possible now in the North Shore situation other than to accept the contract. The receiver, he said, held that if the union did not approve the line might have to be abandoned.

A similar view was expressed by Robert Armstrong, international vice president of the union. In the Chicago, Aurora and Elgin case Zimmerman said any approval of the contract would have to be expressed by the rank and file of the union local membership.

Federal Judge James A. Wilkerson instructed counsel for the receiver and the employees to report to him June 15 on the outcome of their negotiations.

The North Shore offer was modified only slightly from that rejected by the unions last summer, leading to a 50-day tie-up of the lines. Service was restored early in October, the employees receiving full pay, 15 per cent of it in receiver's cost. This arrangement expired today.

Sprague proposed a closed shop contract for two years with the Amalgamated, the union claiming most of the North Shore's 1,000 operating employees. The proposal accepts as a basic wage that requested by the union, but seeks a 10 per cent deduction in pay in any month when the daily average gross revenue is less than $11,200.

Flexible Arrangement
The deduction would be in effect at present since the line's daily earnings are less than $10,300.

Monthly deductions, however, would be reduced to 8, 6, 4, 2 and no per cent as the daily average revenues increase to the 1937 level of $12,500. Adjustments would be made from month to month.

"It being the receiver's feeling," the petition set forth, "that if his employees shall cooperate in solving the problems of this railroad to the extent of accepting wage deductions as hereinbefore set forth, that the receiver's employees affected who are on strike on June 1, 1939, are entitled to all possible consideration by the receiver and the estate which he represents, to bring about the repayment of the money loss which they may suffer by accepting the proposed deductions in pay."

Group Delays Action On Neutrality Bill

Washington—(AP)—Postponing action until June 14, the senate foreign relations committee agreed today to ask Secretary Hull to draft his neutrality views in a formal bill to be considered by the committee.

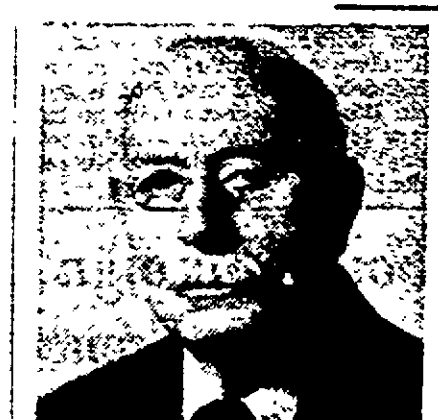

Hull told Chairman Pittman (D-Nev.) in a letter last week that he desired repeal of the automatic arms embargo of the present law and the substitution of a system of presidential regulation of war-time shipping.

None of the several bills pending before the committee takes in all of the points suggested by the secretary of state.

Chairman Pittman (D-Nev.) said the committee would decide at its next meeting June 14 when it would begin intensive work on the neutrality legislation.

California's private industries are now employing as many persons as in 1929, according to Gov. Culbert L. Olson.

Wagner Act Isn't Aiding Relations In Field of Labor

Amendments Defining Illegal Practices Needed—Lawrence

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—A definite movement is afoot to endeavor to placate opposition from employers and various trade unions to the National Labor Relations board by bringing about a change in the rules of the board and avoiding any amendments to the law itself.

This strategy is calculated to defeat any substantial remedies for the weaknesses in the present law and to get the defenders of the statute over the severe hump of criticism which has been piling up in recent months.

Lawrence

The issue involved, however, is fundamental. If congress, having delegated to the board the power to assume responsibility for its unwarranted delegation of power and to write into the law the specific changes needed, then the labor board becomes the truly legislative body. And on no subject has there been as much legislation written by a group outside of the congress itself than by the labor board.

The legislation is in the form of regulations and decisions, and constitutes a voluminous body of rules of conduct, possibly the most far-reaching ever attempted under a democratic form of government. The most intimate relations of business conduct, the opportunities for simple intercourse between management and worker, and the free interplay of communication in writing or by conversation are now subject to the censorship of a government board of three persons responsible to nobody except occasionally the courts when some employer is willing to spend the time and money needed to get a corrective applied.

The labor board rulings and decisions will compare favorably with any set of laws adopted anywhere. There is a logic and consistency of purpose, indeed a clarity of expression in them which is unexcelled. This does not mean they are good decisions or meritorious precedents but that they represent the maximum power that can be derived from a vaguely worded statute. Instead of specifying practices which are illegal, the congress gives a three-man board the right to decide what is an "unfair labor practice." This is language so broad as to permit of the kind of decisions handed down by the board.

Personnel Not the Problem

The aggrieved parties—the employers—have been entrapped into believing that the board is at fault, that the board is biased, and that a mere change in the personnel will change the administration of the law. This is like asking that the supreme court justices be changed in order that decisions favorable to the administration in power may be obtained. If it were conceded that the board is biased, then a change in personnel might only mean a different kind of bias, depending upon which groups could bring about the change.

What the labor board itself would like is no changes in the law and if, in order to prevent congress from making amendments, it is necessary to change a few rules, as a sop to the opposition, the strategists on the administration side are all too eager to do it so that congress will adjourn and leave the act to be administered as heretofore.

The question before congress is whether it will continue to let the labor board write the laws or whether it will specify the area within which the board shall function. Failure to mark out the area is what is causing the friction today.

There are some employers who do not like the Wagner law and who do not care what is done about changes in the rules of the board. These are the people who hope for the complete repeal of the act as soon as popular reaction grows strong enough to bring that about. Already the Wagner law is being compared to the Eighteenth amendment, in that the defenders are unwilling to budge an inch to meet abuse, and ultimately the reaction is expected to be so powerful as to

Today and Tomorrow

BY WALTER LIFFMAN

Secretary Hull's Neutrality Program

There has been some criticism of Secretary Hull because he has waited so long before taking a position on the neutrality act. But his caution has, it seems to me, been wise, and the effect of the delay has been salutary. The delay has greatly improved the position in Europe, and the discussion before the Congressional committees has resulted in a genuine clarification of American policy.

The reason for believing that the delay here has improved the position in Europe can be understood when we remember that nearly three months ago Great Britain stood helpless and irresolute while Hitler tore up the Munich agreement, overran Bohemia and Moravia, occupied Memel, and threatened Poland, Lithuania, and Rumania. Since that happened the British and French have pulled themselves together, have constructed a great defensive alliance, and have made it clear that they mean to defend their vital interests. This has required the going of a great many things, the giving of guarantees to Poland, Rumania, and Greece, the making of an alliance with Turkey and with Russia, the adoption of conscription and the placing of British industry on a war footing.

The total effect of this reversal of British policy has been an acknowledgment of the fact that the vital interests of Great Britain in Europe can be defended only by Great Britain with such allies as she can find in Europe. Had the United States repealed the arms embargo two months ago, it is probable that this action would have been greatly misunderstood in London as meaning that the United States could be counted on to fight alongside of Britain in case the axis struck toward the west.

It is a reasonable assumption that if Mr. Chamberlain had had any reason for thinking that he could count on the United States as an ally, he would never have committed himself in Warsaw, Bucharest, Athens, Angora, much less in Moscow. This would have been a dangerous illusion on his part. Mr. Hull's delay, whether calculated or not, has compelled Mr. Chamberlain to accept the fact that the restoration of a balance of power in Europe is a European responsibility, and to act accordingly.

Delay Had Good Effect

On Hitler, Mussolini

The delay has also had a good effect on Hitler and Mussolini. Back in March the two most prominent proposals before the committees were the Pittman "cash and carry" bill and the Thomas amendment to name the aggressor. Neither bill commanded general sweep the whole reform out of the statute books.

Sees Danger

The Wagner law has in it a great objective—the protection of the rights of labor to organize and to choose without interference its collective bargaining agents. So did prohibition have a marvelous objective—to do away with drunkenness. But in the end prohibition was defeated and a far from satisfactory substitute—state regulation—was imposed because the abuses of prohibition itself—racketeering and gangsterism—became more obnoxious as a social evil than the original defect sought to be cured.

Today friction between employers and employees is growing. The Wagner law permits rulings by the labor board which build walls instead of bridges between workers and management. Consequently, all sorts of abuses are growing up and production is being curtailed because of labor disputes. The objective—better working conditions—can easily be defeated if friction continues.

What is needed is a series of amendments written at this session by a courageous congress specifying what are and what are not illegal acts of employers and employees in the use of economic power, so that economic coercion may be reduced to the minimum on both sides and encouragement given to human and commonsense methods of intercourse between employers and employees.

What is also needed is the substantial enlargement of the federal mediation and conciliation services so that misunderstandings often caused by threats of prosecution made by labor organizers or by other intimidation processes can be removed through the simple frank explanation of opposing viewpoints presented by skilled mediators who know how to bring about an atmosphere in which reconciliation is possible.

support. Both had grave defects which would have caused all manner of confusion and entangling difficulties. Had Mr. Hull sponsored either proposal, it would probably have been defeated, because in the test of debate it could not have carried conviction.

It would have been very dangerous indeed to have this debate with the prospect of eventual defeat at a time when Hitler was on the march and the European opposition was as yet unorganized. It would have furnished one more reason, and a very powerful one, for continuing the campaign which so very nearly brought on a European war at the beginning of April. The delay here left Hitler and Mussolini uncertain as to what the United States might do, and convinced them, we may fairly assume, that if they suddenly bombed London and Paris and overran Holland and Switzerland, the reaction in America would be terrific.

So by depriving Mr. Chamberlain of the illusion that he could count on America, by depriving Hitler of the illusion that he could count on hermetically sealed American isolation as a most necessary and healthy realism has been promoted in both camps. The interest of the United States has been served in that war has been postponed, and perhaps averted; if war has not been averted, our interest has also been served in that the resistance has been organized. The nations which share with us the control of our real frontiers in the Atlantic Ocean and in the Pacific cannot now be defeated by a knockout blow. Our own security is consequently much greater.

America Should Clarify Its Neutrality Act

Now that Great Britain is committed in Europe and now that there is a balance of power among European states, the American interest will best be served by a prompt clarification of the neutrality act. For while the alliances that have been formed in Europe may postpone, perhaps prevent, a world war, there is no certainty that they will. All that is certain now is that if war breaks out it will be a long war and that it will be fought all over Europe, Africa, Asia, and on all the oceans.

The existing neutrality act puts the United States in a most awkward position. It gives to Hitler the power, by the simple act of declaring war or fomenting a revolution, to stop our trade in a long list of commodities, to divert our shipping, to decide where Americans may travel, and to disorganize the financial basis of our foreign trade. Never in our own history, and never in the history of any independent state, has a legislative body voluntarily given such power over its own affairs to a foreign government. And never has a nation professing peace offered such an inducement to an aggressor, never has it put such a premium on going to war or on starting a revolution.

Though this is the effect, it was, of course, not the intention of the American Congress. The intention was to keep the United States from being being entangled, against its will and contrary to its national interest, in a European war. The purpose of Congress in enacting these embargoes and prohibitions was to keep private citizens and private commercial interests from getting so entangled in a foreign war and suffering such injuries that America would have to go to war to protect or avenge them.

Now Mr. Hull's program carries out this purpose as exactly and as efficiently as it is possible to do it. Instead of giving to foreign nations the power to keep Americans out of any part of the world that they choose to name, Mr. Hull proposed to have the United States decide what parts of the world are too dangerous for American travelers, American ships, American exporters. That is the essence of the Hull

Property Taxpayers Advised To Inspect Assessed Values

Madison—Property taxpayers throughout the state were warned today by the Wisconsin Taxpayers alliance to inspect the valuations placed upon their property by local assessors at the time provided for such inspection and if dissatisfied to protest such assessments before the local boards of review which meet during June and July.

"If property owners do not protect their assessments before the local boards of review, they lose all right to protest their personal property assessments and seriously jeopardize successful contest of their real estate assessments," the alliance said.

Local boards of review meet in towns and villages at the town or village hall on June 26 and in cities at the council chambers on July 3. In the city of Milwaukee, which follows a special review procedure, written protests of assessments must be filed with the city tax commissioner by July 17.

"Watch For Date"—To guard against excessive taxes resulting from overassessed property, the alliance advised property owners "to watch for the date the assessment roll in their tax district is open for examination, to inspect the assessments on their property and, if dissatisfied, to appear before the board of review with evidence showing conclusively that the property is overassessed."

"The assessment rolls are open for examination in towns and villages on the last Monday in June," the alliance said. "In cities such rolls are open for examination at the city clerk's office prior to the meeting of the board of review. Taxpayers should watch their local newspapers for a notice of the day assessment rolls are open for inspection as city clerks are required to publish such a notice."

The alliance explained that many taxpayers do not understand that the assessor is under no obligation to give notice of increases in assessments; that it is up to the taxpayer himself to examine the assess-

Clapper Says McNutt to Quit Post to Seek President's Job

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—Although Postmaster General Farley says it is futile to talk about candidates for 1940 until President Roosevelt indicates whether he intends to run for re-election, no such inhibition is being accepted by Paul V. McNutt of Indiana.

His campaign headquarters in Indianapolis is open and at work. He will arrive here in person from Manila in July and will resign as United States high commissioner to the Philippines in order to devote himself to seeking the presidential nomination.

There is only one qualification and it comes from one so intimate with Governor McNutt that it may be taken as authentic. The qualification is that if and when Mr. Roosevelt indicates a desire to be renominated, the McNutt candidacy will fold up. Until there is reliable word from the white house, Mr. McNutt will proceed upon the assumption that Mr. Roosevelt is not a candidate.

For the moment, the McNutt organization is working chiefly for second-choice support in various states where Democratic leaders are hiding behind either the potential Roosevelt third-term candidacy or favoring the Roosevelt sons.

Most important, the McNutt movement is engaged in trying to overcome the barrier erected by Postmaster General Farley, who has had a feud with Governor McNutt dating back to the 1932 convention when Farley was trying to nominate Mr. Roosevelt. The trouble was that Mr. Farley dealt with the wrong crowd in Indiana and McNutt refused to go along and opposed a delegation instructed for Mr. Roosevelt.

Afterward, however, McNutt became governor and energetically supported the Roosevelt administration, driving through state legislation to co-operate with national recovery measures.

McNutt Is In Sympathy With New Deal Policies

The position of Governor McNutt now, as it is outlined to me by a source qualified to speak, is as follows:

Governor McNutt is in thorough sympathy with the general purposes and policies of the Roosevelt administration and will offer his candidacy on that position. This endorsement of the Roosevelt policies does not go to blanket approval of every single action of the administration since 1933, but it does embrace the general purposes.

Furthermore, Governor McNutt is represented as believing not only that the Democratic party could not go to the country next year except upon a platform of endorsement of the Roosevelt administration, but as believing the Democratic party has no reason for existence except as a liberal or progressive party. These are general terms of some what undefined content but the suggestion is the same as Mr. Roosevelt and some of his associates have made repeatedly, namely that if the country is going conservative it will turn to the party which has been the traditional vehicle of conservatism.

The Democratic party has been effective only when it has been a party of protest and readjustment (or reform) and when it has been led by dynamic figures who attempted to make the party an instrument of positive action rather than negative inaction.

Garner Might Make An Opposition Candidate

That, in short, is the picture of the McNutt candidacy which is being made available here. It constitutes a suggestive commentary upon the political strength of Mr. Roosevelt. Along among those most prominently mentioned in connection with the nomination, Vice-President Garner is being projected into the campaign by those who have disagreed most strongly with Mr. Roosevelt—both Democrats and Republicans. He stands high in the polls but it is difficult to see how he can be nominated if he goes in to the convention in the role of fair-haired boy for anti-Roosevelt Democrats. McNutt is playing it the other way. Apparently he hopes to make it extremely difficult for Mr. Roosevelt to oppose him.

OPENING WAR'S SKELETON CLOSET

Pierre Van Paassen is a Dutchman who writes in English that stings.

In his book, "Days of Our Years," a best seller, he devoted twelve pages to the ghastly feature of that ghastly business known as war. He should have written 1200 upon the same subject. And he would have been a pioneer in the business since the ghastliest feature of war seldom gets into print.

Mr. Van Paassen calls this feature "the most distressful aspect" because it involves the wilful and wanton destruction by a country of its own courageous men in order to again whip up to unsustainable heights the jading nerves, tired muscles and benumbed thoughts of those who have already done more than human flesh can stand.

It is quite all right in war to send out a score or a hundred men merely as bait to draw the enemy's fire so that its location may be learned. The score or hundred thus sacrificed have not died in vain. They have merely answered one of the insistently cruel demands of battle.

And, it is quite all right too, to plant other squads at positions of vantage to protect a retreat, ordering them to die in their tracks and never even try to join their comrades. Time is essential and the main army must be saved even if death is the certain message to those who give their lives that the oncoming foe is slowed down.

Van Paassen was striking at something deeper than all this, at a calamity of calamities, where it was necessary to kill the strong and courageous and then to cover them over with shame and slime by accusing them of mutiny, cowardice or what not. The author waded through the records in the French courts where retrials have been ordered of the summary and dictatorial trials had at the front when men were shot practically without hearing and certainly without appeal. He found that many, perhaps thousands upon thousands had been thus destroyed "to set an example" or because "explosive victims were needed," and ended by concluding that the records he found "seemed incredible."

But like a good author he deals in names, dates, regiments, sworn evidence, and courts' judgments.

Lucien Bersot, a French soldier, needed a new pair of pants. Crawling on the ground out in No Man's Land and sleeping in clothes that became soggy in the trenches does not conduce to the preservation of cloth. Bersot's corporal found him a pair of pants that had just been pulled off a dead man. As Bersot looked them over clots of blood dropped from one of the legs. "I don't want it, I wouldn't wear that stinking thing," mumbled this stout peasant from the Midi. An officer heard the language and ordered eight days arrest for refusal to obey. But the officer, a lieutenant, must send in a report and when the colonel received that report, probably after a wretched night due to that incessant pounding of the big guns, he denominated this trivial act of personal dislike of a bloody garment as mutiny. The more the colonel raged about it the more he looked upon it as "open rebellion." Bersot was shot murdering "A thing like this is impossible in France, it must be a joke . . . and just over a dirty pair of pants."

On the Lorraine front a French detachment had been unsuccessful. The general in charge, in high dudgeon, ordered the artillery to shoot the trenches occupied by this detachment. Then, in further punishment, he ordered 22 men out in plain daylight to cut barbed wire. It was good practice for the German machine gunners. Those who were not killed by immediate fire or were able to flop into a hole were afterwards executed for cowardice in the presence of the enemy.

One general's rule—"If there is grumbling among the troops have every tenth man step out of the ranks and put him before a firing squad"—was executed on countless occasions under a wide variety of conditions. Perhaps the most interesting case which Van Paassen dug out of the French records relates to Lieutenant Herduin who, with his command, was unable to execute an order. Herduin bore the highest distinctions for bravery—the Military Medal and the War Cross—but the brigade commander ordered the officers shot for their failure and when

Herduin asked for an interview that he might detail the facts which no one could know as he did, the brigade commander refused to receive him and ordered, "No idle talk, immediate execution."

And so the two officers were led to the place of execution. But the firing squad hesitated. No one wanted to give the command to fire. Noting the pallor of the men who were to execute him and realizing the situation plainly Herduin spoke words that might, under happier circumstances, be chiseled into eternal stone. Said he to the squad:

"My friends, we are charged with not having done our duty but I assure you we did. This will later be acknowledged. But now, you, too, do your duty. Aim straight at the heart. To my wife and my boy goodbye. Fire!"

But Van Paassen is guilty of one grievous fault. He complains because the higher officers who ordered executions of this sort were later decorated with the supreme distinctions of their country such as the Legion of Honor.

We think that, when war is properly understood, those who ordered the execution of the innocent men earned the Legion of Honor, were entitled to all the distinctions that could be placed on their shoulders.

Van Paassen mistakes in peering around for one little flower of justice in war, one blossom to prevent the mind from reeling at the towering pyramids of wrong.

The commanders whom he criticizes treated the army as a profession, the first principle of which is that men are to be spent just for what may be secured by the tossing in of their broken bodies. These commanders realize that an army is greatly strengthened and its discipline lifted to the highest point by the judicious employment of injustice, by the shooting of privates and even of lieutenants and captains, by the reputation gained by commanders as symposiums of rage and by the widespread conclusion that soldiers haven't voices but only ears and when they have heard an order, however impossible it is of compliance, it were far better to die in the "glorious" though needless attempt to obey it than in the less glorious humiliation of the firing squad.

And Van Paassen should have gone further. He should have devoted an entire volume to just the records of one army in respect to this feature of war so that some flickering conception of the bloody business might be kept in mind even as the stirring music comes up the street.

All nations should erect numerous monuments to these men who die with tortured minds, not alone because they are heroes but in the name of accuracy that all sides and angles of a grisly business be comprehended.

For war is not well enough understood. The nations must be made to view the spectacle slowly to the music of a funeral march while there is carried high to the flaming altars of sacrifice the endless procession. The view must not be altered while the warm blood trickles and splashes in the vain attempt to please the scowling Moloch who kicks the corpses of the sacrificed and calls them swine.

WHEN WORDS LOSE THEIR MEANING

Several months ago the Gallup poll found that Democrats, in case Mr. Roosevelt did not seek a third term, were very strong for Mr. Garner. In fact he garnered (not a pun) 42 per cent of their votes. Messrs. Hull and Farley, his nearest competitors, gathered but 10 per cent each.

Just as soon as this strong sentiment in favor of Garner was announced a flood of attack was loosened upon the vice-President. First he was called a conservative, then a reactionary, then a black reactionary. Interspersed with these terms were a lot of others such as "traitor to the President," man of great wealth, and the like. After the professional slanders had plenty of time to get in their work the Gallup poll went into action again. And this time Mr. Garner's vote jumped from 42 to 50 per cent.

It is evident that the coming election is going to be one where the more a man is denounced in these overused terms the more popular he is likely to be. There was a time when the word liberal had a very wholesome meaning in the political life of America. But if Mr. Roosevelt's financial policies are classified as liberal the term is sure to become one of reproach. And when that happens other words are just as likely to lose their old battering force. A reactionary will become a very favored gentleman by reason of the fact that he opposes the things so erroneously called liberal.

Mr. Garner is too old, we believe, for the presidency, but he today typifies in the Democratic party the thoughtful man. There are enough others who typify the garrulous, talkative fellow who is spilling all the time but saying nothing.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

YOUNG LOVE

Wrapped in a dream she walks, and scarcely knows
That rain has drenched the garden, and loud peals
Of thunder shatter my adult repose.
Foreboding, like a blind bat, slowly wheels
Through the dark sky of morning . . . She can
Nothing but sunlight, though the future winds
Down the dark alleys of futurity.
In spite of our two viewpoints, her love binds
Me to her with new bands that will not sever.
I only pray her vision lasts forever. A

DALE HARRISON'S
In Old New York

New York — Man's pleasure has always been to eat. Restaurants pop up like weeds. They are the most numerous shops in New York. Restaurants are forever waiting that there is no profit in the sale of food, but they keep right on opening new places.

Significant, though, is the comparative short life of famous eating places. Few that were famous a generation ago still flourish. Rector's, storied in song, is no more. Gone, too, are the old Delmonico's and Bustanoby's famous eatery where Signor Rectorberg, composed of "Blossom Time," once played piano.

Prohibition drove many of them out of business. Chain restaurants may have had something to do with it, too. Repeat brought new eating habits and new places to cater to them.

Through the years, however, a few of the restaurants have remained, supported by those to whom dining is a serious science. There are Leone's, a midtown place with all devotees of Italian food know, Luchow's, with its German cuisine, and Cavanaugh's, where the Irish predominate and where steaks and Irish Stew are specialties.

One of the oldest eating places is Village-pique's at Sheephead Bay. It was there, at the suggestion of Diamond Jim Brady, that the "Shore Dinner" — an Epicurean adventure — was born. Village-pique's is 52 years old this season. Over the years it has served such appreciators of good food as Harry Payne Whitney, James J. Corbett, William A. Brady, Billy Pinkerton, Harry K. Thaw, Marie Dressler, Babe Ruth and President Roosevelt. Motorcars drive up now, but Village-pique's has seen the day when its clientele arrived in jolly tallyhoses and elegant barouches.

"I'll meet you at—" When people start a sentence like that in New York, they generally finish by naming one of three places — the Information Desk at Grand Central, the Astor lobby, or "Under the Clock" at the Biltmore.

The Grand Central rendezvous shows a mixed collection of date-waiters, both men and women waiting mostly for friends, wives or sweethearts arriving by suburban trains for engagements in town. The Astor lobby is peopled mostly by women who betray their impatience by frequent glances at their watches. "Under the Clock" at the Biltmore is favored by collegians. During the first four months of this year the Biltmore register showed guests from 413 different colleges, universities and prep schools.

Glass Conscious: Dining the other night at the Hotel Edison's Blue Room was society's glamour girl, Brenda Frazier. A crowd gathered outside the West 44th Street side, waiting to mob her for autographs when she emerged. A Tenth Avenue gamin, ragged and dirty, shoved through the crowd and demanded to know for whom they were waiting. Someone told him, "Oh, her!" he snorted, disdainfully. "Dat Frazier dame don't rate on dis side o'town. She's strictly an East Side dame." Whereupon he sneezed his way out of the crowd and went looking for something more interesting — at least something more Tenth Avenue-ish.

Good Old Democracy: Royalty must like New York. In a recent evening at the Waldorf-Astoria's Starlight Roof I noticed Prince Mikhail Alexandrovitch Gunduroff, Countess Sylvia Poulet, Marquis Etienne de Villermont, Baron George Taube and His Highness the Maharajah of Rajpale.

MY YESTERDAY

Had the misfortune to sit down for tea with two newspapermen whose idea of great humor is to crack puns. I couldn't say a word but what it started them on a routine of punnery. The word "Shoe" got into the conversation (just to give you an idea) and one of the low comedians said: "So you think I'm a heel, eh?" "Well, you'll have to Toe the mark," repeated the other, "or I'll give you a Lacing." "Stop it," snapped the other, "your puns are Telling me in Stitches." "Hold your Tongue," cracked the other, whereupon I said: "I hope that is the Last." Whereupon they gave me the boot. I can't understand how I happen to know such strange people.

Looking Backward

10 YEARS AGO

Wednesday, May 29, 1929

The largest senior class in the history of Appleton High school was to be graduated at Lawrence Memorial chapel that evening. Two hundred and fifty-five students were to receive diplomas. The previous year there were 198 graduated.

Ray Menning, captain of the Lawrence college track team and its star miler, set a new Little Four mark for the mile in a meet at Beloit. He turned the distance in 4 minutes 33.7 seconds. The old mark was 4 minutes 43.4 seconds.

25 YEARS AGO

Wednesday, June 3, 1914

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Kamp entertained 12 friends at their home, 1160 Fourth street, the previous evening. Games were played with first prize going to William F. Wolf and the consolation prize going to Miss Martha Verwey. Dr. C. R. Atkinson of Lawrence college was to make a tour of Europe that summer with a party of economists, city officials and social workers who were to study the civic and social problems of leading centers in Europe.

Opinions of Others

SPENDING VS. SAVING

In his statement last week before a committee of congress, Chairman Eccles of the Federal Reserve Board once more expressed the opinion that under the conditions which prevail today a policy of thoroughgoing retrenchment in Washington would be followed by "disastrous" consequences. But there is a good deal of evidence which points to a contrary conclusion, and which strongly supports the argument that a balanced budget is an essential part of any sound program of recovery. In the depression year 1921, instead of borrowing more money the government actually reduced its debt by more than a billion dollars. According to Mr. Eccles' theory, such a course was appallingly "deflationary." Yet it was followed by one of the most vigorous recoveries in our history. In more recent times England has achieved a recovery far more extensive than our own without "deficit-financing," and the evidence from France indicates that the first real beginning of recovery there has followed a genuine effort made at long last, to put the government's fiscal affairs in order.

As against this evidence, and more could be adduced, what does our own record show? We have had deficits pour in for nine years running; we are at a level of expenditures never before paralleled before in peace times; we have more than doubled our national debt; and still have ten million unemployed. Spending hasn't worked. —New York Times.

A Bystander
In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—The coming visit of King George and Queen Elizabeth has given this country an excuse for a period of "watchful waiting" while the air clears in Europe.

Domestic affairs, the royal visit, and third term talk have crowded the European business aside for a time, but the inner tension is no less, perhaps even greater. One informed source says the British program of encirclement may have been a serious diplomatic blunder that may be remedied only by a backing down on the Polish guarantees, even if that will work.

That view is based on such conditions as these:

1—During all his expansion program, Herr Hitler has kept in mind that he must avoid war with England. He explained that position in Mein Kampf. Diplomats who have watched his course minutely have accepted that statement in the Hitler book as gilt-edged—until lately.

2—It was generally accepted that Hitler would limit himself to claims in which there was at least a shadow of equity. That was considered the case in the Saar Basin, geographically a part of Germany as with the Rhineland withheld by the Allies after the war. That was the case with Austria, since they were racially one people. The same covers the Sudetenland. As for Germany's claims on Poland, it is pointed out that most people in Danzig are German, and a German road across the Polish corridor would connect two segments of the Reich.

Then Trouble Started
But before the claims against Poland could be foreclosed by Germany, England made some cautious "moves" to stir Hitler's moves in southeast Europe. Almost at once Hitler moved into Moravia and the rest of Czechoslovakia where it was agreed he had not a tassel of equity right, racially or otherwise. (And then England started work in earnest to tie up allies on all sides against further expansion.)

It was the first solid evidence that Hitler may have changed his tactics. Was he convinced that England would stand in the way of his realization even of those claims in which he had a show of right? If so, he may abandon his program of seeking to avoid conflict with England. He may decide there is only one way for Germany to obtain a reasonably important place in the world and that is by destroying Britain.

That is why so much importance attaches to the Polish business just now. England has made a tentative agreement to protect Poland, but she left herself a fascinating opening. She promised aid only if Germany moves against Danzig and the Corridor threatened Polish independence.

More Concessions?
It is possible that concessions may be worked out which will satisfy Hitler without too seriously affronting Poland. He may conclude there is a way, other than by war with England, to additional claims in which there is a show of historical or economic equity, such as colonies. But if England's encirclement was too hasty, and has convinced Hitler that the only way out for Germany is to smash England, then he may not try the peaceful way with Poland.

That is why Poland is watched so closely just now, and why statesmen are glad of the royal diversion of public attention. They always feel better when there is, less public agitation.

And regardless of what may be thought of the foreign policy of this administration or of earlier administrations, the underlying motive of all of them has been the belief that once war starts in Europe it will be next to impossible to stay out of it.

SEE WHAT'S BEEN ROOSTING IN THE CUCKOO'S NEST

Under the
CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—At the risk of appearing to take a partisan concern in the matter, this correspondent would like to revert again to the Republican administration's plan to organize the Wisconsin Public Service Commission into a one man body.

The Republican proponents of the plan argue that it would be economical. But the substitute director, and assistant director, and the new board of administrative review which would also be a part of the new plan, will produce no economies.

Republican proponents claim that one man direction would be more efficient. Yet there is no evidence that anyone else in the utility field, or elsewhere, agrees. As a matter of fact the one man utility commission in the state capitals of America is rare. The three man body is the accepted form of organization.

Proponents argue that removal of the three man body would remove factional strife and bickerings. But never has there been a charge that the three members of the Wisconsin commission, now or at any time in the recent past, haven't gotten along together amicably.

Apparently the people who are most concerned with the quality of administrative organization of the Wisconsin utility commission are presently satisfied that it is a good one.

The Wisconsin Utilities association, with a heavy vested interest in regulation matters, recently published a pamphlet entitled "Why Wisconsin Has Forged Ahead Electrically."

That publication explained that 45,000 Wisconsin citizens are investors or owners of electric service companies doing more than 90 per cent of their business in Wisconsin. They have a property interest valued at $294,000,000, they employ 7,000 citizens and serve 650,000 customers. The payroll amounts to $12,600,000 annually, and the annual tax payment is more than $9,000,000. They spend $10,000,000 a year for utilities and supplies.

In short, the utility industry in Wisconsin is a big one. It follows that the state commission which regulates it, its profits, activities and policies, is a tremendously important one.

But it was not always that way. Twenty-five years ago there were only 118,000 customers, compared with today's 650,000. Rates have been reduced in that period 50 per cent, although the cost of living has increased about 40 per cent. That's progress, all of it under the eye of the public service commission.

CONCLUSION
Moreover, the future of the electrical development of Wisconsin is of profound general economic importance. The state needs new industries; new industries will come only if cheap and dependable power is available.

Reviewing the utilities' pamphlet, an organ of the Billees interests recently observed: "The story of electrical development in Wisconsin is splendid testimony to the ability of private citizens, investors, owners, managers and employees to operate the electric business in the public interest."

It is likewise testimony to the ability of the public through constituted commissions to regulate the operations of utilities and promote the interests of consumers on

Personal Health Talks

OLD GEEZERS

Sunshine, exercise, diet, temperance, natural breathing, iodine and teeth are what it takes to remain young and keep well, to live long and die happy. The Seven Keys to Vite. That is the title of the 70-page booklet giving the complete regimen or program for building vite. It has been given in installments in this column; those who want the series of articles collected in a single volume may send 25 cent coin and a one-cent-stamped envelope for the booklet.

Youth and vite have much in common. It is the way of life that plant or animal (man is an animal) begins to die soon after it has attained maturity. The age of maturity for man is commonly known as "middle age" — forty to fifty years. How soon after forty or fifty one becomes old, senile, anile, obviously going into decline, elderly, depends on how much vite one has. The Seven Keys to Vite will not do away with the need for homes for the aged, old age pensions, geriatrics or anything like that, but I sincerely believe almost any one not past mature age who has "tolerable" health can prolong his or her youth for years by adopting some of the suggestions offered in the booklet. In any case, it can do no harm to try out some of the keys and see for yourself whether you can stave off the cold gradations of decay.

Probably the most characteristic feature, sign or index of old age, is the inclination of old geezers to complain. If they do not actually utter complaints they manifest or express complaint habitually. Conditions of environment which are normal to more youthful persons elicit complaint from the old geezers. For example, they detect drafts, dampness or change of weather when people with vite are comfortable enough.

Another test of a regular old geezer is this: Ask him or her to try rolling a few somersaults every morning. A regular old geezer will glare at you or dismiss you as a crazy galeat unworthy of serious attention. On the other hand a sexagenarian with vite will tell you not to be silly — he has been rolling 'em for years.

The poet who said youth is a state of mind may have been right. Certainly premature old age likes a stiff, inelastic body with little bounce or resiliency in it, ruled by a staid and settled mind.

Persons under middle age who have one or more bad teeth or one or more teeth missing should not waste two bits for a copy of "The Seven Keys to Vite." They are not likely to enjoy vite in any adequate degree. It might be a better investment for them to apply the two bits toward paying for the services of a dentist who will treat and repair the bad teeth or replace with a functionally efficient denture the missing teeth.

How long should water be boiled one hand, and suppliers on the other. . . . Although a lion's share of the credit for Wisconsin electrical department rightfully belongs to the investor-owned utilities, the part played by the public service commission must not be overlooked.

If the utilities themselves concede satisfaction with the treatment they have received, and in the absence of public demand for a change, this column ventures to ask "why reorganize?"

Hold Supper At Riverview Country Club

"W"ERE going to stay home and be safe and sound," said large numbers of residents of Appleton and nearby communities, and so, rather than take to the highways, they streamed to the country clubs in and near the city. About 100 persons attended the buffet supper at Riverview Country club Tuesday evening. Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. William Jones, Kalamazoo, Mich., a former Neenah resident, who came to the supper as Miss Helen Babcock's guest; Mrs. William Sprague Eddy, Chicago, who came with Mrs. E. P. Arpin, Neenah; and Mr. and Mrs. George S. Parker, Anderson, Ind., who have been visiting at the Celia Parker home, Appleton. Mrs. Eddy spent the Memorial day holidays at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Madison, E. Wisconsin avenue, Neenah.

A dinner was given Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Schuelke, Dale, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Schuelke who were married recently. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Edward Tauffer and family, Tigerton; Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Struck and family; Hortonville; Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Meyer and family, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Schuelke and family, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Scherke and the Rev. and Mrs. Zink, Dale; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Steinback and family, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Meibner, Appleton; and Miss Eleanor, Schofield.

Ladies' Aid society of St. Joseph's church will sponsor the second of a series of card parties at 2:30 Thursday afternoon at St. Joseph's hall. In charge of arrangements are Mrs. John Bast, Mrs. C. A. Kaufman and Mrs. Siegfried Lehrer.

A circus party complete with parade, costumes and a performer's ring was held Tuesday at the James J. Mackesy home, 818 E. Winnebago street, in honor of the sixth birthday anniversary of Janet Mackesy. Twenty-four of Janet's little neighbors and friends dressed up in fancy costumes and participated in the parade, and later did stunts in the ring which was set up in the back yard. Singing games provided other entertainment, and ice cream in animal molds carried out the circus theme.

This morning Janet Mackesy and David Hoppe treated their classmates at Edison school in celebration of their birthday anniversaries. David's birthday will be Friday.

Blackshirts Use Catholic Palace

Austrian Archbishop's Residence Taken Over By Nazi Guards

Salzburg, Germany.—(AP)—Regional officials of the Schutzstaffel today conducted the business of the Nazi blackshirt elite guard in a palace which for more than a century had been the home of Salzburg's Catholic archbishops.

Archbishop Sigismund Waltz, Catholic primate of Germany, found himself dispossessed yesterday when he returned from a journey over the Whitsuntide holidays. The palace furniture had been carted to a warehouse and the archbishop took up temporary residence in a seminary.

The churchman was notified a month ago he would have to leave the palace and at that time he wrote to Reichsfuehrer Hitler, asking him to countermand the order. He cited an 1805 guarantee by Emperor Francis II of Austria, conferring on the church the privilege of using the palace and certain other properties following the secularization of 1802 whereby property of the archbishop of Salzburg became state property.

(Salzburg is in German Austria, annexed by Germany March 13, 1938.)

SHIOCTON COUPLE MARRIED 60 YEARS

Married 60 years ago in a small Baptist church in Brown county, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Peep, above, Shiocton, celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary Sunday. Both of them were born in Wisconsin before the Civil war began. Their hardy pioneer spirit still has a chance to assert itself each spring when their home, which is located on the banks of the Wolf river, is surrounded by water and they must row across it to get to church or attend to their shopping. Four of their six children are still living, and there are also 18 grandchildren and 17 great grandchildren.

More Pictures Feature New Issue of High School Annual

Copies of the Clarion, Appleton High school yearbook, were distributed to students after the awards day program this noon and caused a scramble for autographs of classmates.

The halls were filled with students asking everyone in sight: "Will you sign my annual?" and "Write something in my book."

Like the new building whose picture is on the cover of the yearbook, the 1939 Clarion is "modern without being modernistic." Simplicity in every detail is its keynote.

Authorize Sale Of Utility Bonds

Northwestern Wisconsin Electric Co. Gets State Permit

Madison.—(AP)—The public service commission announced today it had authorized Northwestern Wisconsin Electric company to issue $125,000 of first mortgage 5 per cent sinking bonds.

The bonds will mature May 1, 1954. They will be used to retire bond issues of Clam River Electric and Polk Electric Light companies, payment of a $6,000 debt to the American Utilities Corp., and provide $43,610 for additions to plant and equipment.

The commission canceled authority granted in 1937 for issuance of $6,000 in bonds because the utility had been unable to sell them.

In another order the commission authorized Wisconsin Power and Light company to extend rural electric lines in the town of Jordan, Green county.

It scheduled a hearing at Superior or June 13 on the petition of 349 persons for an order directing Iron River Electric Transmission company to extend rural electric lines in Cloverland and Brule towns, Douglas county, and Oulu town, Bayfield county.

A hearing will be held in Madison Friday, the commission said, on application of Wisconsin Power and Light company to buy the Wisconsin Creek Co-operative Assn., of Spring Green, for $7,800. Built several years ago with private funds, this co-operative was established before the REA movement started.

SIGN NEW CONTRACT

Milwaukee.—(AP)—S. A. Fulton, president of the Fulton company and Lawrence Carlstrom, secretary of the United Automobile Workers' district council, announced today the signing of a new labor contract affecting 115 employees of the company. The contract contains a seniority clause which provides that non-union workers be dismissed first during layoffs.

Before his election to the American presidency, George Washington was president of a canal company.

Assembly Rejects Plan To Stop Union Efforts

Montreat, N. C.—(AP)—The general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States (Southern) left to its 88 constituent presbyteries today the question of whether the permanent committee on union and cooperation should be abolished.

Before the 79th assembly adjourned last night it voted down a proposal that the movement for union with the northern church be discontinued.

The committee on union and cooperation submitted a plan which it said the northern church would consider favorably but made no recommendation.

The Rev. D. F. Murphy of Booneville, Mo., the Rev. Dorsey Ellis of Sikeston, Mo., and Dr. A. A. Wallace of Mexico, Mo., said they favored the union because of the problems overlapping border syndicates.

John Barrymore Told To Take Things Easy

Chicago.—(AP)—John Barrymore was under doctor's orders today to curtail activities outside the theatre after the veteran actor suffered a slight heart attack that caused cancellation of last night's appearance in "My Dear Children."

Dr. W. H. Highstone said the attack was caused by overwork. The 57-year-old actor has been under his care for the past fortnight. Dr. Highstone said Barrymore probably would be able to resume his stage work immediately but would need more rest than he has allowed himself.

Republic Steel's Mines Will Reopen Thursday

Birmingham, Ala.—(AP)—An agreement under which the Republic Steel Corporation's Alabama coal mines will resume operations Thursday was announced by William Mitch, district president of the United Mine Workers of America.

Usually reliable sources said yesterday the agreement provides the same wages and hours in effect prior to expiration April 1 of the former two-year agreement. The "union shop" clause, a bone of contention between Alabama commercial operators and the U. M. W. A., was not included, the same source said.

Announce Engagement Of Miss Rose Coenen

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Coenen, route 2, Appleton, have announced the approaching marriage of their daughter, Rose, who will become the bride of Norbert Frank Loerke, son of Lawrence Loerke, route 4, Appleton, on June 22 at St. John Catholic church, Little Chute.

The United States consumed 567,500,000 barrels of gasoline in 1938.

Little Hope for Atlantic Flier

Thomas H. Smith Believed Lost in Solo Hop Over Ocean

London.—(AP)—Thomas H. Smith, the second flier within two weeks to attempt a solo Atlantic crossing, apparently has joined his predecessor, Charles Backman, Swedish airman, and others before him who couldn't beat the long odds.

The principal hope for the young Californian who tried to span the ocean in a 65-horse-power monoplane was that he had landed at some remote spot in Scotland or Ireland and had not been able to communicate with authorities.

Then, too, there was the possibility he had been picked up at sea by some vessel without radio equipment.

Smith took off from Old Orchard Beach, Me., at 2:47 a. m., C. S. T. Sunday with enough fuel for from 36 to 42 hours of flight. Backman started May 15 from Bangor, Maine, for a non-stop flight to Sweden and has been unreported.

Wife of Famous British Banker Recruits Air Raid Volunteers

Recruits Air Raid Volunteers

BY WILLIAM MCGAFFIN

London.—(AP)—Brisk, business-like Mrs. Montagu Norman sits at a desk in Westminster recruiting women for the Air Raid Precautions services.

It seems a strange job for the wife of the governor of the Bank of England. But she doesn't think so. She used to be a member of the London County Council, until her marriage to the "mystery man" of British finance five and a half years ago. He was then a 61-year-old bachelor, she a 33-year-old divorcee with two sons.

I dropped into her office to get her slant on her work.

She gives you a friendly handshake as you come in. As you settle down in a chair, you observe that she has ash blonde hair, a youthful, oval-shaped face, and a charming personality beneath her efficient business-woman manner.

"You have a dangerous job, don't you think, Mrs. Norman?" I ask.

"All of us in this type of work are in danger, of course."

"But doesn't your husband object?"

"On the contrary. All of us must help."

Mrs. Norman is vice-chairman in charge of the London area of the Women's Voluntary Services for A. R. P.—a government organization newly created to enroll a half million women volunteers for the various Air Raid Precautions services.

The organization has been criticized in the House of Commons for being in the hands of "society ladies and young debutantes."

But Mrs. Norman says "they're all workers" whatever their social or financial position. "Merit" is the only thing that counts, she explains.

"What would you do, Mrs. Norman, if enemy bombers raided London today?"

"I don't know. I hadn't thought of that."

"I should think your first concern would be for your family."

"Yes, I suppose it would be."

"Then don't you think your women volunteers would feel the same clash between duty and family?"

"Yes, I suppose so." In some instances, however, she explains that A. R. P. duty and family responsibility are being coordinated. Housewives, especially those in the poorer sections, are to be trained what to do in a raid.

"Their husbands will be working, probably, and they'll be alone with the children. If we can show them how to put out bombs and how to seal up their windows so the glass won't fly we will help prevent them from getting so panicky, we feel."

"But do you think it's practical to use women for A. R. P. work? Can they keep their heads in an emergency?"

"It's not only practical but essential. We're in an emergency. We must have the support of the women."

The list of A. R. P. jobs for women ranges from telephonists and stenographers to ambulance drivers, evacuation leaders, casualty workers and undertakers.

Resume Discussions In Mine Controversy

Harlan, Ky.—(AP)—United Mine Workers (CIO) representatives and Harlan County Coal operators association leaders resumed negotiations today seeking peace in this disturbed soft coal mining area.

The conference opened shortly after 10 o'clock a. m., central standard time. The meeting was a closed one.

About 200 national guardsmen were on duty this morning when another mine opened without contract. There was no disorder.

Memorial Day Is Without Single Traffic Mishap

No Auto Accidents Reported; Motorcycle Rider Hurt Today

Technically speaking, there were no traffic mishaps in Appleton during Memorial day and evening, but a motorcycle rider was cut and bruised about 12:15 this morning in the city.

Police of the city and county breathed easier as they looked back on yesterday's heavy traffic and good record.

William Nagreen, 24, 405 Fifth street, Neenah, was treated at St. Elizabeth's hospital early this morning after his motorcycle hit a curbing in the 200 block on W. Foster street and skidded on the pavement. His injuries were not serious.

Captain Charles Steidl of the county highway police said that although both local and through traffic was heavy, drivers were "fairly sensible." People living in the city and county who drove out for the day seemed to "be eager to get home early," Steidl said, because traffic thinned quickly after dark.

Appleton streets were fairly busy yesterday morning as residents drove to the Riverside cemetery services or started out of the city. In the afternoon, however, College avenue and other business streets were almost deserted.

City Hall Equipment Bids to be Received

Bids for steel and wood cabinets, window shades, electrical fixtures, steel and wood furniture will be received by the city of Appleton up to 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon at city hall. Plans and specifications for the various equipment are on file at the city clerk's office and at the office of Raymond N. LeVee, architect, 117 E. College avenue.

The PWA awarded a grant of $41,080 to remodel Lincoln school into a city hall, the estimated cost of which is $91,288. Remodeling work was started last December and is nearing completion.

Mercury Climbs Up to 91 Degrees

Midsummer Weather Prevails in Appleton Area Yesterday and Today

Season records and Appleton residents took a beating yesterday when the mercury climbed to 91 degrees. The midsummer weather, which continued today, is expected to be disrupted by scattered thunderstorms Thursday afternoon. Increased cloudiness was predicted tonight with continued warm temperatures tonight and Thursday.

Memorial day parades and services were favored with a bright sun and a clear sky. Scores of Appleton residents took advantage of the holiday and engaged in outdoor activities or sought relief from the heat at nearby lakes.

Not to be outdone, today's temperatures were in the upper bracket with the thermometer on the roof of the Post-Crescent building registering 89 degrees early this afternoon and expected to go higher. Highest and lowest temperatures during the 24-hour period preceding 9 o'clock this morning were 91 degrees at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon and 67 degrees at 4:30 this morning, according to records at the power plant of the Wisconsin Michigan Power company.

High temperatures in the state yesterday included Park Falls and Superior with 94 degrees; Green Bay and La Crosse with 92 and Madison and Milwaukee with 90. The mercury hit 100 in South Dakota and northwestern Minnesota yesterday but temperatures were falling today in the western states.

Maximum and minimum temperatures for the nation yesterday were at Bismarck and Phoenix with 104 degrees and Winnemucca, Nev., Roseburg, Ore., and Yellowstone with 42, according to the Associated Press.

Michigan Baptists' Leader Objects to Union of Churches

Madison—(P)—Judge E. J. Millington, president of the Michigan Baptists, told the state convention of Wisconsin Baptists last night that a union of all Christian churches was not desirable because the present system of many denominations provided more freedom.

Addressing about 300 delegates at a banquet, he said:

"Some people praise the church because it is a stabilizer. I am absolutely opposed to that view because there are many institutions that should not be stabilized. I would rather see the church as an influence for a change in many things."

"We have such destructive institutions as the liquor traffic, gambling and many other things devastating our youth. These institutions we do not want stabilized. But you and I are guilty of maintaining them. Without our votes and our consent they could not exist."

The convention today heard reports on missionary activities. The 3-day meeting will end tomorrow.

Milwaukee Accused Of Intent to Murder

Milwaukee—(P)—Vincent Lukaszewicz, 48, who lives at the Soldiers' Home, was charged today with assault with intent to murder, in connection with the beating of Mrs. Dorothy Arnezeder, 45, Monday night. Police, reporting she discharged Lukaszewicz recently as a chauffeur, charged him with striking her with a 20-inch length of gas pipe.

RITUAL FOR SAILORS HELD AT RIVER BANK
The above picture was taken during the closing ceremony of Appleton's Memorial day observances yesterday at Riverside cemetery. # King and Queen on Trip Back Through Canadian Regions

Royal Train Due Morning of June 8 at National Capital

Victoria, B. C. — (P)— Britain's touring sovereigns—all Canada at their feet—about-faced today for their return trip through the broad dominion, with Washington, D. C., their major objective.

Due in the United States capital on the morning of June 8, the royal train awaited King George and Queen Elizabeth at Vancouver station, to pull out on a more northerly route than the westward trip.

King George's regret is that although he has seen much of Canada's vastness, and is going to see more, he will have to skip the Arctic, which he said holds so much of Canada's future.

Dull statistics show that Canada's youth up to the present has been more interested in hunting the gold in the hills and cities of the United States than in the unsettled spaces of the north, but the king's advice to them, given at the official government luncheon here, was to go north, where he said there is a field of enterprise for youth which it will take generations to exhaust.

The royal entourage could look forward to but one day of rest between now and their departure for England on June 15 from Halifax. They arrive at Jasper National park Thursday morning and remain until Friday morning. Then, with brief official stops at Edmonton and Saskatoon and many halts of a few minutes, the royal special races through to the thickly-populated districts of Ontario for two busy days before the train crosses the international border on June 7 at Niagara, where Secretary of State Hull will welcome the king and queen to the United States and accompany them to the capitol.

Madison—(P)—United States District Attorney John J. Boyle announced today the federal grand jury for the Western Wisconsin district would convene here June 25.

Polk Only President to Refuse To be Candidate for 2nd Term

Washington—(P)—Senator Vandenberg's call for a one-term pledge from the next Republican candidate for president is by no means the first of its kind, but it appears that only once has a successful presidential nominee actually made and kept such a promise.

He was James K. Polk, nominated as a dark horse at Baltimore in 1844 after Martin Van Buren of New York and Senator Lewis Cass of Michigan had been leading contenders in the Democratic convention. When notified of his selection, Polk wrote a letter of acceptance saying:

"I deem the present to be the proper occasion to declare that if the nomination made by the convention shall be confirmed by the people, I shall enter upon the discharge of the high and solemn duties of the office with the settled purpose of not being a candidate for reelection."

Several times during his administration he noted in his diary that there was talk about the possibility of his running for a second term in spite of his declaration.

"My mind has been made up," he wrote, "from the time I accepted the Baltimore nomination, and is still so, to serve but one term and not be a candidate for reelection."

He adhered to his pledge. Cass won the Democratic nomination in 1848, and made a one-term promise. He did not get elected, however.

Benes Dedicates Czechs' Pavilion At New York Fair

Says 'Coming of Liberty For Czech People Is Inevitable'

New York—(P)—Dr. Eduard Benes, former president of Czechoslovakia, dedicated his "ghost" country's pavilion at the New York world's fair today with a challenge to the legality of the German protectorate over Czechoslovakia and a prediction that "the coming of liberty for the Czech people is inevitable."

"The times seem dark for us and for the fate of all small nations in Europe," Dr. Benes said, "but thanks to this great land of freedom and its democratic government, we Czechs, Slovaks and Carpatho-Russians still can show to the world how an humble yet free and democratic people can work—and why that people will never die."

The pavilion, one of the major edifices in the foreign section, was begun before German troops marched into Czechoslovakia and since then has been maintained, as cited by an inscription on the facade, "By its friends in America."

Dr. Benes, recalling that the United States "refused to recognize the republic of Czechoslovakia and continues to recognize the representative of the Czechoslovak republic as the only representative of the Czechoslovak people in this country," declared:

"This act of international law and order, of justice and fairness, has helped us to underline in the face of the whole world the sound, firm basis of the legal existence of our state—in spite of what happened in Europe during the last months."

Carl H. Maas, 80, Owner of Briggs Hotel, Succumbs

Came to Appleton 17 Years Ago; Was Organizer of Green Bay Mill

Carl H. Maas, 80, owner of the Briggs hotel, died at 7:15 this morning after a week's illness. He was born July 16, 1858, in Germany and came to America when 22 years old. He settled in Green Bay and 10 years later was one of the organizers of the East River planing mill at Green Bay. He moved to Appleton 17 years ago when he purchased the Briggs hotel and operated it until his death.

Survivors are the widow; two daughters, Viola Maas, Appleton; Mrs. M. N. Miller, Green Bay; four sons, Irving and Arthur Appleton; Otto, Seymour, Harry, Dallas, Texas, and three grandchildren.

Coeds Use Chocolate Pies in Campus Duel At Louisiana Tech

Ruston, La.—(P)—With a well-aimed pie, Miss Anna Holstead defended her honor today in a unique duel with another Louisiana Tech coed who had criticized her literary efforts.

For Miss Holstead, who hails from Shreveport, the affair marked her farewell to the Tech campus. She was graduated last night. Her opponent, Miss Varnelle Plastow, Bay Shore, N. Y., is a sophomore.

Miss Holstead objected to Miss Plastow's somewhat blunt description of her literary style.

"It smells," Miss Plastow declared—and the duel was on.

Attended by a few students and seconds bearing towels, the duellists met early this morning behind the stadium. Each carried a drippy chocolate pie in a tin pan.

They stood back to back, took five paces, and let fly. Miss Holstead's aim was the better.

"Touché," she cried as the pie splashed over her opponent.

A classmate judge said the southern girl was the winner. The seconds rushed up with the towels, and the two girls parted friends.

Fear New Violence In Factions' Clash At Briggs Plants

Detroit Police Arrest 14; Seize Blackjacks and Baseball Bats

Detroit—(P)—Fearing a new outbreak of factional violence in connection with the Briggs Manufacturing company strike, police today arrested 14 men and seized blackjacks, baseball bats and lengths of rubber hose.

Nine of the men were released quickly but the other five were detained for additional questioning.

At 3:45 a. m. guards at a hall of the United Auto Workers union (CIO), which called the Briggs strike 10 days ago, asked for police help, saying they feared an attack. Officers of the special investigation detail arrested three men booked as George Grisham, 32, Samuel Miller, 28, Fred Mitchell, 33, all of Evesville, Ind.

Police said the three were members of the Homer Martin independent faction of the U.A.W.A. and quoted them as saying they came to Detroit "to settle this union fight."

Bring in 11 Men

Shortly afterward police cruiser squads brought in 11 men accused of besieging a restaurant in search for a pro-Martin auto worker said to be opposed to the Briggs strike. The police found Jesse Taylor, a Briggs employee, hiding in the cellar of the restaurant. Taylor said he was beaten Monday night and feared further violence.

Two of the 11, described as CIO men, were held by the police.

In picket line fights Monday night one man was shot and several clubbed. Joseph Ferris, vice president of the Briggs CIO U.A.W.A. local, remained in serious condition today from two bullet wounds.

James F. Dewey, federal labor conciliator, said he would rule today on 28 grievances claimed by the striking Briggs workers. Both management and union have agreed to abide by Dewey's rulings and it was believed his decision would open the way for a strike truce and the return to work of more than 70,000 auto workers.

Briggs has seven plants here which supply auto bodies and parts to other companies.

W. F. Ashe Heads Research Bureau

The bureau has a $15,000 appropriation for use until June 30, plus a "sum sufficient" for the next fiscal year.

The senate bill, establishing the division, was introduced Feb. 8 and passed by the senate March 28. Progressives, who fought the measure as a "snooper's bill," said it would result in a capitol "ogopu." It was defended by Republicans as a necessary step to effect governmental economy. It was signed by the governor April 14.

Powers of Director

The director is empowered to "hold either public or private hearings" and employ such persons as he deems "necessary to execute his functions and fix their compensation." He is required to "reduce to writings his findings" and submit them to the governor, who, in turn, may order their submission to the legislature.

The law allows the director and his assistants to "enter into any department, institution, board or commission and examine its books, accounts, rules and regulations and any other matter which in the director's judgment should be examined and may interrogate the department's employees publicly or privately relative thereto."

John Barrymore Put Under Oxygen Tent

Chicago—(P)—John Barrymore was given oxygen treatments today and was placed under constant medical care as a heart condition attributed by his doctors to complete exhaustion forced at least a temporary cancellation of his show here.

The great lover was placed on a special diet and was ordered under nurses' care for 24 hours a day.

Aids said the 57-year-old actor, long known to the stage as a fine trouper, insisted on resuming his role in "My Dear Children" on Monday night. His illness caused cancellation of last night's scheduled performance, but the Selwyn theater had announced earlier today that the star was expected to return to the boards tonight.

Dr. W. H. Hightstone explained the oxygen tent was ordered for Barrymore only because of a definite deficiency of oxygen in the bloodstream. An electro-cardiograph examination disclosed no coronary thrombosis, the physicians said, but indicated a weak heart muscle.

war veteran, was honored at the service and was presented with a bronze plaque.

Joseph Witmer, past commander of the Harvey Pierre post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, recited "Logan's Order No. 11," and James Heisel, Appleton High school student, the "Gettysburg Address." The Rev. L. Scanlon, of St. Mary's church, gave the invocation, and the senior high school choir sang.

A parade, in which patriotic organizations participated, preceded the services at the cemetery.

One of the two closing ceremonies was the ritual for the war dead, at the plot of George D. Eggleston post of the G. A. R. Flowers were strewn on the graves as the senior high school choir sang. Three volleys of shots pierced the air and trumpets sounded taps.

A ceremony for sailors and marines was carried out below the cemetery at the water's edge of the Fox river. Flowers and wreaths were strewn upon the waters while taps were sounded and the dead saluted by three volleys of shots. Judge Fred V. Heinemann's boat, "Horsefearer," decorated with flags, floated at anchor a short distance from the shore and children also dropped flowers onto the river from the boat as the ceremony was in progress.

Bolles Says G.O.P. Majority Needed

Washington—(P)—Representative Bolles (R-Wis.) said in an interview today protection for the dairy farmer and his products requires a Republican delegation from midwestern states.

"What we need particularly is a solid Republican delegation from Minnesota, Iowa and Wisconsin," he asserted in predicting the Hull bill to make dairying a basic commodity under the agricultural adjustment act is "doomed to defeat" at this session of congress.

"It's too late this time, but it may be enacted at the next session," he said. "I don't think that eventually it is the solution. We're trying to do things by piece meal, trying to put plasters on sores when we should try to consider the general condition of the patient."

Raps Trade Pacts
He attacked reciprocal trade agreements and declared with a Republican congress and a Republican midwest delegation the first thing that would be accomplished would be a reorganization of dairying on some plan formulated for protection of dairy farmers and their products and voiding by congressional action of every trade agreement written by Secretary of State Hull and the administration.

"We have received no support from the south which wants to hog it all," he asserted.

Bolles said the way the agriculture department supply bill was written, the dairy farmers, to get $25,000,000 for dairy surplus commodities purchase, must vote $313,000,000 for products other than dairying.

Spring Wild Flowers are Now At Height of Blooming Period

BY CLARA HUSSONG

"Just like a garden!" We are forced to utter this exclamation dozens of times when driving or walking through the country at this time of the year. Every woodlot, weedy pasture and road side ditch holds patches of flowers in colors ranging from white to bright blue and yellow.

Most of our earliest wild blossoms are delicately colored but by the end of May and early June we begin to see varieties which are conspicuous both in size and in color. In many families Memorial day has always been reserved for a trip through the country to see the state at its lush, green, garlanded with the gay colors of flowers, shrubs and trees. Even the most unobservant cannot help exclaiming over and enjoying the beauties that greet us whenever we go, and.

"Whether we look, or whether we listen."

We hear life murmur, or see it gladden.

Pink Shows Are
A favorite drive is up into Door county, through the state parks or along the lake shore on the eastern edge of the peninsula. By taking the former route you will pass through immense tracts of towering trees; maples, birch, oak, beech, basswood and occasional pines and hemlocks. The most conspicuous flower will be the large flowering trillium, whose three large petals are turning pink by the end of the month.

Many people, when seeing the trillium in its latter stage, call it the "pink trillium" and consider it a different species from the snow-white lily it is when it first begins to blossom, but taking on the pink tinge is only the trillium's graceful way of ending its blooming stage. The flower grows so abundantly all over the northern half of the state that, until I discovered it was one of our protected species. Although the blossom is picked below the three green leaves, which is the way it invariably is picked.

At least two of our native orchids will be found in blossom along this same route. One is the yellow lady's slipper, found in deep shady woods, sometimes in a boggy hollow but often on moist hillsides. It is the most common of our lady's slippers, but we must remember that some of the species in this group are rare indeed, so even the yellow variety is a "find," if you happen to run across it. All orchids are protected in the state.

Orchids in Door County
Another orchid which I had never seen until visiting the parks in Door county is the striped coral root. Like many of the tropical orchids, this plant is parasitic, living on leaf mold in woods. The blossom is a pale purple striped with darker purple and the underground stems are much branched and coral-like in appearance.

By following the eastern edge of the peninsula you will run into a different type of vegetation. The soil is sandier and in many places decidedly swampy, covered with dense growths of spruce, cedar, juniper and other evergreens. Two flowers which turn the sandy shores of Lake Michigan into gay gardens are the dwarf iris and the bird's eye primrose. These two grow abundantly near Bailey's Harbor but are almost unknown in the rest of the state.

The dwarf iris, as the name suggests, is a tiny species whose blue blossom rests almost on the moist sandy ground. Growing with it you will find the bird's eye primrose, a small pink, blue or white flower of typical primrose shape slender tube and spreading lobes. This plant has also been found in the Bayfield peninsula, and to a lesser extent, in the dells of the Wisconsin and St. Croix rivers.

A drive through the Menominee reservation is always a pleasure at this time of the year because of the many blossoming shrubs and flowers. The many Juneberry trees found here give the landscape a dainty white, trimmed-up look. Bounding the woods along the highways you will see thousands of trilliums, wild blue phlox and cranesbill. In sandy places you may find the Indian paint-brush beginning to open its flower head, which is really scarlet-tipped leaves instead of petals.

Time For Visit
In our own family a favorite Memorial day trip is up into the sandy, scrub oak and pine country of Marinette and Oconto counties. The attraction there is the wild lupine, which turns the sunny openings in the slashings into immense blue carpets. Lupine grows only where the soil is the sandiest. Bird's foot violet, a variety with a much-divided leaf, is a common companion of the lupine. The area we visit has two other flowers blossoming at the same time, the wild blue phlox and the yellow puccoon, noted both for its bright clusters of flowers and, later in the summer, for the hard white seeds, which look like tiny beads or pearls.

Perhaps your own favorite wild flower garden is nothing at all like these I've described here, but whatever and wherever it is, be sure to visit it at this, the "high tide of the year." Right now the cool weather, the fresh greenness of leaves, the many flowers and the singing of the birds all combine to make it an ideal time for seeing the country.

ENDS WORK AT WAUPACA
Waupaca — Hugh Raymond, director of the Central Application Bureau for the last several years, left Tuesday night for Milwaukee where he will visit before leaving for Madison where he will engage in business for himself. Miss Esther Fiolet, social worker, will act as director until August when the county child welfare committee will meet to make definite arrangements for the future.

Judge Scheller Gives Memorial Day Talk at Clintonville Rites

Clintonville — A large crowd attended the Memorial day program Tuesday morning at Graceland cemetery. Hundreds of school children from the public and parochial schools marched in the parade, which was led by the national guardsmen and the high school band, followed by patriotic organizations and the Legion drum and bugle corps.

Judge A. M. Scheller of Waupaca gave the principal address, in which he admonished his listeners to do all in their power to avert war. He reviewed incidents of the World war, which was to have been a war to end wars. Judge Scheller called attention to the extensive military preparations now underway in many countries.

The speaker was introduced by Mayor A. A. Washburn and the program was announced by Alderman Henry Schellen, chairman of the Memorial day committee. Musical selections were furnished by a high school boys' quartet, a girls' chorus, and the high school band. The invocation and the benediction were given by the Rev. E. C. West-hause.

Among the out-of-town visitors here on Memorial day were: Mr. and Mrs. Frank McAdams of Madison. Mr. and Mrs. Hjalmar Olson of Wausau. Mrs. H. A. Rindt and children Dorothy and Kenneth of Merrill.

Miss Bertha Schroeder of Waukegan, Ill., is spending this week here with her sister, Mrs. Carl Buelow, and other relatives.

W. J. Olson Funeral Is Conducted at Waupaca

Waupaca — Funeral services for William J. Olson, 65, were conducted at the Holy Funeral Home at 1:31 Monday afternoon by the Rev. Hugh A. Misdall of the First Methodist church. Burial was in Lake-side cemetery.

Mr. Olson was born in the town of Saxeville, Waushara county, May 10, 1874. In 1898 he moved to Waupaca where he was employed with the P. M. Olson potato warehouse. The following year he operated the J. P. Peterson farm at Cedar Lake, which farm he later purchased. In 1904, after selling the farm, he engaged in the restaurant business in Waupaca. Serious illness compelled him to sell the business a year later but in 1906 he re-engaged in that business.

On March 10, 1909, he married Miss Ella Peterson. Mrs. Olson died June 15, 1915.

For several years Mr. Olson was a manufacturer of ice cream, and also established a taxi line through which he became widely known. After a period of employment at the Wisconsin Veterans' Home he acquired the Simon Jensen farm east of the city where he since resided.

As the result of an accident two weeks ago when a horse kicked him, he died May 25. Surviving is a son, Clyde, at home. Bearers at the funeral were Clair Olson, Darroll Olson, Harold Hartman, Leland Olson, Marion Olson, nephews, and Louis Olson.

Neutrality Laws Won't Bring World Peace, Green Says

Methodist Church Pastor Speaker at Memorial Day Services

Kaukauna—A warning that world peace could not be secured by "neutrality laws," but only through a willingness to sit in at the council tables of all nations was the theme of the Memorial day address yesterday afternoon at Monument square by the Rev. L. F. Green, pastor of B. R. O. K. a. W. Methodist church. The talk climaxed a parade from Legion hall, with 500 people braving the 90-degree heat to attend the ceremonies.

"None of us in this world of turmoil want another war," the Rev. Mr. Green began, "but grave difficulties confront us when we attempt to avoid one. The word 'neutrality'—what does it mean? What we consider acts of neutrality may embroil us in a war."

"If we sell openly we are aiding the wealthier of warring nations— if we forbid our materials to belligerents we aid the weaker."

Must Work Together

"It is written that 'no man can live unto himself.' We in America in a friendly way should lift our voices and sit in on the councils of the nations, striving for a peaceful solution. In our modern world of transportation and communication all must work for a solution, so closely are we bound together. In the world's peace lie our hopes of retaining our democratic principles and progressing onward."

At Monument square the high school band, directed by Clarence Kriesa, played two selections, "America," to open the program, and "The Star Spangled Banner," as the ceremonies closed. Arthur Schubring introduced the Rev. Mr. Green and other speakers. Mrs. Hilda Specht, chairman of the Legion Auxiliary, spoke briefly.

Fire Salute

The American Legion drum and bugle corps played, following which the audience remained silent for 30 seconds in honor of the war dead. The Legion firing squad, with Alfred Wagnitz in charge, fired a salute. SOTAL buglers sounded taps and retreat.

The procession then went down Lave street to the bridge, where a wreath was tossed into the river in memory of sailors who lost their lives in the war. The Veterans of Foreign Wars auxiliary was in charge. Marching in the parade were both veterans' groups and their auxiliaries, the high school band, the drum and bugle corps boy and girl scouts and Women's Relief corps.

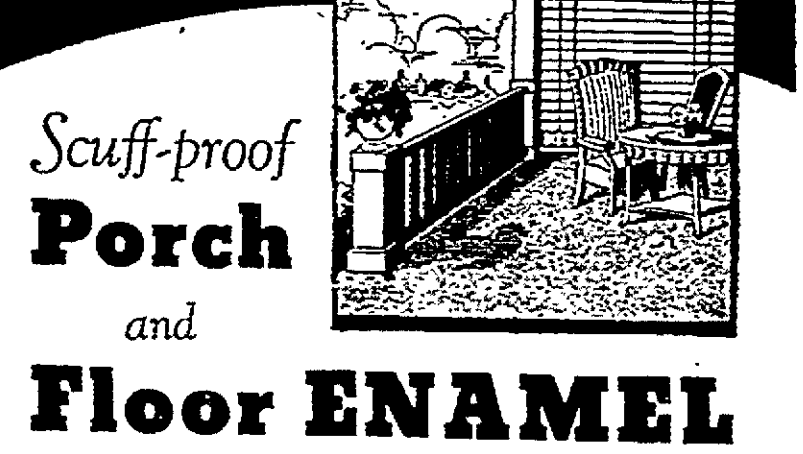

In the early afternoon all Kaukauna cemeteries and St. Francis cemetery at Hollandtown were visited by the firing squad, color guard, color bearers and buglers of the two posts. At each cemetery the names of the war dead were read, a salute fired and taps sounded.

Al Weiss was general chairman.

The Kaukauna office of the Appleton Post-Crescent is located in the Jules Mertes barbershop on Wisconsin avenue. William Dowling is the correspondent in charge and the telephone number is 107. Subscribers may call this number until 6:30 in the evening if their papers were not delivered.

Many Major Bills Awaiting Action In Legislature

Proposal to Reorganize State Government Subject of Speculation

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—The slow progress of Governor Heil's far-reaching proposals to reorganize the state government was the subject of speculation in legislative circles this week.

The average Wisconsin legislature is in session about six months. The present legislature will enter its sixth month this week, and to date but little headway has been made on the long series of measures which envision broad changes in the administrative set-up of the capitol.

The legislature has already passed the bills calling for a new labor board, a new board of agriculture, a new securities division, and a new department of governmental research. It has also abolished the department of commerce.

But still awaiting action, months after their introduction in the legislature, are such important propositions as reorganization of the tax commission, the banking commission, the public service commission, the board of control, the motor vehicle division, the state educational system, the creation of the department of promotion, and several minor reshufflings.

Interest Is Lacking

Noteworthy too is the relative lack of interest in the legislature and among the citizens of the state in the extensive reorganization program, as evidenced by the casual hearings most of the bills have received thus far.

One exception has been the hearing given to the highway commission reorganization bill. One Republican senator appeared for it; practically the entire personnel of the Wisconsin county highway department system, and scores of contractors were registered against it.

Moreover, when the reorganization bills do reach the floor, they are repeatedly laid over. Last week the senate took up the public service commission reorganization bill, which contemplates substitution of a single director for a three-man membership on that body, and the board of administrative review, a new agency which would hear appeals from state commissions which now go directly to the circuit courts of Dane county.

Bills Laid Over

After somewhat listless debate, the bills were laid over for a week. The same action was taken on the department of welfare proposal, which has been slumbering in legislative committees for about three months, and which is one of the most important, least opposed, and most heavily supported reorganization bills in the Heil program.

A bill proposing that the tax commission, now consisting of three members, be changed to a one man body was also given a hearing last week. Two speakers appeared to argue for it, Speaker Thomson who introduced it, and Charles Rosa, former tax commission chairman and prominent political figure, who is regarded as a possible choice for the position of tax commissioner if the bill passes. No one appeared against the bill.

The educational consolidation bill despite the fact that Governor Heil supported it in his budget message and has spoken for it publicly since,

Among the protesters were Arnold Krueger, Outagamie county highway commissioner, and George Cormier, Brown county highway chief, and former Senator John E. Cashman of Denmark, once chairman of the senate highway committee.

Highway commissioners, speaking as if with a single voice, disputed the claim of the administration that one man direction would be more

Strong Protests

So strong were the protests that it is believed in many quarters that the administration will withdraw the bill. One influential member of the senate, veteran Mike Mack of Shiocton who is chairman of the senate highway committee, thinks that the administration would be wise to withdraw it.

Most significant feature of the discussion on the reorganization bills which has yet appeared was the unanimous opposition from highway interests to the highway reorganization bill. The bill proposes a single highway commissioner to replace the present commission which consists of three members.

BY JIM BOHR
CLINTONVILLE—A decision by the base umpire probably cost the Clintonville FWD Truckers their first defeat of the season when Seymour went home with a not too definite 5 to 3 win here yesterday. However, the Trucks still are hanging to first place with three wins and one loss. The game was Seymour's first win and Manager Bill Row felt a little bit of guilt. He remarked after the game, "It's just the way that you look at it."

In addition to being the first defeat handed the Trucks this season it also was the first defeat for Sid Feltz, elongated Trucker hurler, in the Northern State circuit. Dick Weisgerber, former Kaukauna moundsman, and now with Seymour, added another feather to his cap in hanging up the victory. Last year the Trucks nipped him for only one win while he took three.

Seymour was weak at the plate getting only six hits while the Trucks came through with seven. However, five of the six Seymour hits were doubles and four of Clintonville's went for two bases. The main reason for the many doubles was a glaring sun which handicapped the fielders.

The Trucks started off on the right foot in the second inning when they pushed across the first run of the game. After Gene Volkman flied out, Ray Trimble, popular Trucker first sacker, slammed a single. He was followed by Leo Fox, right fielder, who lined a double to the left field fence scoring Trimble. Fox was stranded on third when the next two batters flied.

Seymour came back strong in its half of the third when Nubs Kroening, up after Weisgerber had grounded out, caught hold of one for a double. Ham Powell followed in Kroening's footsteps by lining a two base hit scoring Kroening. Things were rather dull during the next inning but in the fifth inning the Trucks came back with a marker. Sid Feltz, Trucker pitcher, singled and went to second when Al Ankerson grounded out. Rollie Kersten, who has been surprising everyone including himself with his hitting, came through with a double to score Feltz.

Powell Scores
Clintonville wasn't able to keep Seymour in the background for it came through with a run in the first half of the sixth. Ham Powell, the first batter for Bill Row's nine, was walked and went to second when Kelly sacrificed. He came home when Baldy Eggert added a double.

It was in the next inning that all the commotion was created. However, Manager Len Goeringer of the Trucks said he would not protest but would make things mighty interesting the next time Seymour and the Trucks met. Jack Lamers was the first batter up for Seymour in the seventh and he flied out bringing up Zelinski who put himself on second with a double. Dick Weisgerber took three strikes for the second out and then Nubs Kroening got a base on balls putting him on first with Zelinski still on second.

Ham Powell hit a hard grounder to Rollie Kersten, Trucker third baseman, who muffed the ball but still had control of it and Zelinski ran into Kersten who couldn't help but tag him some way. But the base umpire, who was standing near second base and who was directly in back of the play, called Zelinski safe. The umpire behind the plate attempted to make a decision on the play and called the runner out but withdrew his decision when he collected the ball.

With Zelinski on third, Kroening, on second and Powell on first, Kelly hit a ground ball to Ty Stief who errored allowing Zelinski to score, and the bases still were loaded. Boozie Bowers then singled scoring Kroening and Powell for Seymour's three runs which put the game on ice. At this time Feltz was taken out and Tommy Tomlin was put in. He held the Seymour nine for two and one-third innings without a man reaching first base and with four strikeouts credited to him.

Kimberly, Menasha Clash

Tonight in Booster Game;
Papermakers Undeclared

KIMBERLY—It will be booster night at the Kimberly ball park this evening when Menasha crosses bats with the Kimberly Papermakers under lights. The Community band will be out to pep up the program. Indications are that a large crowd will be on hand as advance reports are many Menasha fans will witness the game.

Manager Butch Thein's nine will be gunning for its fourth straight victory at the expense of the visitors who are in fifth place in Valley league standings with two wins out of three starts. Kimberly and Kaukauna still are undeclared.

The Kimberly manager had his club out at regular intervals last week. All the Papermakers have been playing great ball and Thein doesn't want a letdown Wednesday evening as the Kimberly goal is the first half championship.

The Menasha squad will be opposed by one of the best twillers of the league when it faces Artie Hofkins, slated to start the show. Vander Zanden, a rookie pitcher who joined the club a few weeks back, will be on hand if needed.

In the Appleton game, Vander Zanden shared mound duties with Hofkins and in two times to the plate, got a hit which resulted in a run. Paul Van Dyke of high school basketball fame will be in the game Wednesday evening and probably will be at short.

Sonny Wildenberg, veteran back stop who was injured in the first game this season, still is out of the game and is being replaced by Buck LeMay.

Little Chute—As the result of a 5 to 4 victory over the Greenville Merchants team here Memorial day, the Chuters are perched in first place in the league standings. The defeat was the second for the Merchants in two days as Cory Tavern team of Appleton defeated them last Sunday, 6 to 3.

The battle for the league lead was nip and tuck with the visitors taking a two run lead in the second inning on singles by Meltz and Reimer and G. Huebner's double. Little Chute came right back in the third inning with three runs. Don Dethers drew a walk. Van Asten came through with his first of three singles. Mike Koss got a life on G. Huebner's error and Daze Van Thiel blasted a double to send three runners across the plate. Greenville then tied the score at 3 all Seger singled, went to second on a fielder's choice by Hoier and scored on a single by L. Huebner. The Merchants went into the lead in the fifth when Reimer got a single, advanced on a long fly to Weyenberg, the Chuter left field and scored on Wunderlich's hit.

The Dutchmen went into the lead again in the sixth and kept it. A free pass to first was given Mike Koss. Van Thiel stopped a wild pitch, and both runners tallied on a double by Frankie Koehn. The Chuters threatened in the seventh with Peters and Van Asten getting singles in succession. Huebner then tightened up to stop the threat.

Brewers Win and Lose Memorial Day Games With Blues

MILWAUKEE —(P)—The Milwaukee Brewers and Kansas City split a Memorial day double header before 9,371 baseball fans yesterday, Milwaukee winning the seven-inning nightcap 7 to 6 after the visitors took the opener 12 to 11.

Ralph Winegarner, Milwaukee's handy-man, gave the Brewers an even break by driving in three runs with a double in the last inning of the second game after he had pitched the second innings of scoreless ball in his first appearance of the year as a relief hurler.

The league-leading Blues hammered five Milwaukee pitchers for 15 hits in the first game, taking the decision when Whitey Kibball, fourth Brewer hurler, wild-pitched in the deciding run in the seventh inning.

Minneapolis ran its winning streak to five and climbed within two games of the Blues by winning both ends of its holiday double bill with St. Paul.

Buck Fausett's triple with the bases filled clinched the first game for the Millers, 9 to 5. Bill Butland's pitching, his own home run and two more by Jimmy Pofahl helped win the second, 10 to 3. The double setback extended St. Paul's losing streak to nine.

Louisville, Indianapolis won both games 6 to 0 and 2 to 1. Newman's two homers and a double drove in all Indian runs in the first game. A shower of cushions and bottles ended the second game when Umpire Dunn called Peeewe Reese out at first on a close play as Fabian Gaffke crossed the plate with what would have been the tying run.

Columbus and Toledo exchanged shutout victories. Max Macon allowed four hits and tamed the Mudhens 11 to 0 in the afternoon game. In the night contest, Ewalt Pyle turned in a three-hit performance to give Toledo a 6 to 0 decision.

Baer Supposed to be Favorite But Betting Odds are Narrow

BY EDDIE BRIETZ
NEW YORK —(P)—Rumor factory I. C. 4-A circles hear Brutus Hamilton of U. of California will coach the 1940 Olympic track and field squad.

John Roxborough will put Buddy Moore (the Joe Louis of tomorrow) through college before turning him loose as a pro. Reports that the Yanks had bid 50,000 slugs for Joe Kraskus of the Senators, brought this from Ed Barrow: "The only pitcher I'd pay $50,000 for is Red Ruffing and I've got him." Baer is supposed to be the favorite tomorrow night, but in some spots here it's 6-5 and write your own ticket.

Anything Can Happen—
The other night Tony Galento played the balcony scene from Romeo and Juliet via the air waves. The next night Max Baer got even by stepping before a mike and reeling off Hamlet's soliloquy. What will they do next—sign John Barrymore for a fight?

Believe It or Not: Those Indians Ben Chapman and Johnny Broaca room together and never felt better in their lives. A Denver High school pitcher was rushed to the rescue in the ninth inning with his team one run ahead and two men on base. He pitched one ball and the batter popped into a triple play.

Roger Loving hiked 66 miles from Sheboygan to Appleton, Wis., to win the broad jump in a high school track and field meet.

Mail Box: Glenn Cunningham and friends: You guys will have to step on it in the Princeton mile. Guess you noted Sydney Wooderson's 4:07.4 warm-up the other day. Don Meade: Your faithful followers can't help but wonder what's become of your winning streak.

Pepper Martin: Branch Rickey doesn't know whom he'd pick if he had the choice of all the players in the big leagues, but he knows who'd be the last to go if he owned 'em all and was peddling 'em—a chap named Pepper Martin—and how do you like that, big boy?

Today's Guest Star—
John P. Carmichael, Chicago Daily News: "Once upon a time John McGraw tried to trade a room named Bill Terry for Johnny Cooney, a southpaw pitcher. Unfortunately for the Giants, the deal fell through."

Quickies: The promoters were left holding a great big bag when the Armstrong-Roderick fight didn't draw enough to cover Henry's $48,500 guarantee. Why all the to-do about Eric Tipton signing with the Athletics? Roundup readers knew that a month ago. Herman Taylor, Philly promoter, bounced in with the news that fans down there will buy $100 worth of Louisville-Galento tickets. Mike Jacobs told Herman to say that again.

Coaching Short Course—
Before a recent track meet, a Marquette baton man asked Coach Conrad M. Jennings: "How'd I run this one, coach?" "Run it fast, boy," replied Jennings. "Run it fast."

Washington —(P)—Carl Storck of Dayton, Ohio, new president of the National Professional Football league, said today that good college football is necessary for the pro game.

"We rise or fall with the colleges," he said.

Storck said there was a possibility that headquarters for the league would be moved from Dayton to a larger city, possibly Washington. He said he favored the capital and would propose the move when the team owners meet in Pittsburgh in July.

Storck came to Washington to discuss removal of headquarters, see some baseball games and attend the graduation tomorrow of his daughter from National Park college. Forest Glen, Md.

HURLS NO-HITTER
Milwaukee —(P)—Ralph Krause hurled a no-hit, no-run game here yesterday as he pitched the Thano's Markets in the Municipal Minor league to a 9 to 0 victory over the Lisbon Avenue Merchants. His teammates committed five errors but he struck out 13 and walked only two to keep home plate uncrossed.

Green Bay—Hebels dropped from its tie for first place Tuesday afternoon when the postponed game between that team and Duck Creek was played. Final score was 7 to 2.

The Crookers reached Lefty Kohls and Al Gaffney for 16 hits, while the Hebelmen helped along the Duck Creek win by committing five errors.

The victors gave Hebel's little opportunity to score and immediately began the fireworks by scoring in both the first and second innings. The Duck Creek nine scored in every inning except the third and eighth.

Gaffney relieved Kohls in the second inning when Lefty got himself into hot water for the second time.

Sophomore Wins
Golf Honors in
Big Ten TourneyUnknown Northwestern
U. Player Noses Out
Favored Teammate

Evanston, Ill. —(P)—Thirteen years of golf have led Chase Fannon, Northwestern's sensational sophomore, to the championship of the Western conference.

Fannon, who began playing when he was six years old, came from the ranks of the unknown yesterday to win the title with a 72-hole medal score of 285 strokes, seven over par for the Kildeer country club course.

No. 4 man on the Northwestern team, Fannon moved into the pace setting position in the first round with a par 72, matched that score in the second round, slid to a 77 in the third round then turned back his pursuers in the final 18 with a 74 to win by three strokes.

Second place went to Sid Richardson, his teammate who was trying for his third consecutive Big Ten title with a total of 288 and third place to Willie Thomson, Iowa senior, one stroke higher.

Northwestern won the team title with 1,197 strokes, taking the title from Minnesota, the 1938 champion. Michigan finished second with an aggregate of 1,226.

Fannon, a quiet, easy-going shot-maker, hopes to collect other titles before the summer is over. He plans to compete for a berth in the national amateur, play in the national intercollegiate and possibly the western junior tournament.

His coach, Ted Faysure, thinks he has a fine future. "He showed me he has the shots and the courage to go places by the way he took this title," said Faysure. "He took the lead and held it all the way, took chances when he needed to and played conservative golf when that was best. He's a smart gol

Fight Radicalism In U. S., Memorial Day Speaker Says

New London Honors War Dead With Parade And Services

New London — Keep faith with our soldier dead so that what they fought for shall endure, District Attorney Paul E. Roman of Waupaca told his audience at Washington High school Tuesday morning in a Memorial day address.

It is up to us now to sell America to America, he declared, and fight inwardly the influences of communism and radicalism at work in this country under the protection of the flag of liberty and freedom of speech and press. The memory of all our soldier dead should inspire in us the true meaning of the sacrifice and love of country they displayed, he asserted.

It has been the custom from the beginning of time to honor the dead, the speaker pointed out, but not until 1868 was May 30 set aside, through the influence of the Grand Army of the Republic, as a day to honor the memory of war dead. The day has since come to be a memorial to the heroes of all wars.

Introduced on the auditorium stage by Emil Gehrke, master of ceremonies, were the officers of the city's veterans organizations and auxiliaries, surviving veterans of early wars, and Gold Star mothers.

A parade five blocks long followed the water services at the American Legion clubhouse at 9 o'clock in the morning. The line of march proceeded from the clubhouse up Dorset street to Washington High school. Leading the column were the color bearers and guards, followed in order by the High school band, firing squad, Spanish veterans in cars, world war veterans, war widows and Gold Star mothers in cars, American Legion auxiliary and junior auxiliary, Women's Relief corps, boys scouts, girl scouts in uniform under Mrs. William Gens and several hundred school children. The Junior High school band, dressed in new uniforms and led by Drum Major Margaret Gehrke, brought up the rear of the parade. It was the band's first marching appearance in the city.

After the program at the high school, the veterans' group drove to Floral Hill cemetery where tribute was paid to the dead in a grave service at the new Memorial Plot. The Rev. H. P. Reikstad conducted the invocation and benediction at all services. The entire observance was arranged by the American Legion, Norris-Spencer post and auxiliary.

McCarthy Scores War Propaganda

Circuit Judge Elect Warns Against Listening to 'Calamity Howlers'

Kimberly — Condemning war propaganda, Joseph R. McCarthy, circuit judge-elect, said in a Memorial day address here Monday that during the last year there has been a concerted effort on the part of an organized minority to propagandize this country and create a spirit of war-mindfulness.

He said "it is not extremely difficult to play upon the passions, prejudices, hates and fears of a people and we are being systematically prepared for another holocaust." He warned against listening to a "calamity howler."

"While practically all the people of the world hate and fear and abhor war and desire peace with their hearts and souls, organized groups abroad with the aid of a few warmongers and so-called peace groups here, have kept the international pot boiling with distrust and fear."

Mr. McCarthy urged every individual to devote efforts toward stemming the flow of propaganda. "In our relations with other nations, we use no force, we make no threats. In short, we long have striven to keep our national honor free from any mark or blemish that might mock or anger another nation. And if the ideals and the ideas of the great mass of American people are followed, the calamity which cut short the lives of our heroic dead shall never again be visited upon us nor upon our children, nor upon the generations that follow," he declared.

Hollywood — Clark Gable and Carole Lombard are treating Hollywood to a masterly exhibition of diplomacy in their dealings with the press. With every fan magazine scribe and newspaper subscriber in a dither of eagerness to "tell all" about their at-home life, they have managed to maintain their dignity, preserve their privacy and avoid slushy comment. And — most remarkably — they have done it without making enemies. Some of their fellow stars who, with far less excuse, are constantly feuding with the fan scribblers, might well profit by the Gable-Lombard technique.

Clark and Carole avoid giving of offense — and incidentally, being offended — because they know WHERE to draw the line. Instead of going into temperamental tirades when asked some perfectly legitimate, though quite personal questions, they have the common sense to concede that the public whose admiration made them stars, has a perfect right to be curious about their personal affairs. And, being perhaps the least egotistical top-notchers in town, they are grateful enough to that public to satisfy its legitimate curiosity cheerfully.

They draw the line precisely where it should be drawn, between the word, "personal," and the word, "private." They are glad to talk about vacation plans, common career interests, social activities, hobbies, their new home — in short any one of the multitudinous subjects that the public has a right to display interest in. But they do not choose to talk about "How Clark Looks When He Wakes Up in the Morning," or about "The Reason Why Marriage Hasn't Robbed Carole of Her Charm."

And the first scene they played in represented a Japanese bombing attack on a hospital.

COURT CLERK DIES Milwaukee — (P) — John W. Woller, 71, clerk of circuit court here since 1907, died yesterday of heart disease at St. Joseph's hospital. He had been named assistant clerk in 1890 and deputy clerk in 1897.

There's something decidedly human in the story of nine-year-old George Draper, who lives not far from Lucille Ball. George had always been "just crazy" to have a dog, and admitted his passion to Lucille one evening when she stopped for a chat with him during the course of her evening stroll with her pedigreed pooch. Lucille bought him a dog — and ever since he's worshipped her as the one divine lady in the world. The other day, when Lucille was rushed to the hospital for an emergency appendicitis operation, George heard about it. He walked to the hospital, commandeered a seat in the reception room — and refused to budge until the nurses told him the operation was over and Lucille was resting. Since then, he's been a daily visitor, always with an armful of flowers — picked from the gardens of obliging neighbors.

Must have seemed like old home week to Ann May Wong's sisters, Loo and Liuhung, when they launched their screen careers the other day with small roles in Paramount's "Disputed Passage." The Mademoiselles Wong have spent the past five years in war torn China. And the first scene they played in represented a Japanese bombing attack on a hospital.

PIGS, PORK AND TRICHINOSIS
In some countries, but not in all, pork is the most popular meat. The Chinese seem to like it better than any other meat, and it has been appearing on their dinner tables for at least 3,000 years.

Germany seems to have the highest average of pork-eating of all nations—about 76 pounds per person each year. Canada, the United States and Denmark rank close to Germany, with about 70 pounds of pork per person. These figures include ham and bacon, which may be classed as pork since they come from the pig.

The disease almost always goes back to the same thing—eating pork which is not well cooked. Little worms can be transferred from pigs to people, and they can do great damage.

Even when full-grown the worms are less than one-sixth of an inch long. They are known as "trichina" worms. The name is pronounced "trih-keuh-nuh," with accent on the second syllable.

When the everyday food of swine is grain, they seldom take the worms into their bodies. When they are fed with garbage or swill, they are far too likely to swallow them.

The eggs of these worms hatch inside the swine, and the worms in their larval stage pass into the flesh of the animals. There may be many thousands of them in one little pig. Tests seem to have proved that about two per cent of swine are infected.

A person who eats pork which has not been well cooked is in danger of the disease. The worms get into the muscles, or other parts of the human body, and may cause swelling of the flesh, painful soreness of the muscles, fever, and sometimes death. Doctors do not have any certain cure for this illness. The best way to treat it is not to get it!

A little frying of a pork chop in a skillet does not give safety. The pork must be cooked until it is "done clear through." There is extra safety if pork chops are baked before they are fried. Many persons say they taste better when cooked that way, and surely it is worth the trouble to guard against such a dis-

Twin City Citizens Pay Tribute To Vets in Memorial Services

Menasha—Citizens of Neenah, and Menasha paid tribute to war veterans, living and dead, in the annual impressive Memorial day services Tuesday at Oak Hill cemetery.

Two cities, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the auxiliaries, national guard, three high school bands, and school children participated in the parade while several hundred veterans followed to the cemetery for the services and other hundreds stood along the line of march.

The Rev. William Willinger, assistant at St. Mary's parish, called on the people to renew the spirit of sacrifice which impelled the soldiers and sailors to give up their lives so that America can continue to be great and to lead other nations.

He pointed out that it is easy to honor the dead on Memorial day and easy to proclaim loyalty, but that it is another thing to carry those proclamations out.

"It was the duty of soldiers to leave their families and their homes in some cases to die in foreign fields, or to carry the mark left by spirit and devotion and sacrifice and that is the thing I say," he said.

In the absence of Thayer, who is recovering from an illness, a message from the Neenah Civil war veteran was read. Sheerin urged a greater love for the country and the world, and a duty to carry out and realize what war has meant in human suffering and asked for peace

Menasha Alumni Will Hold Annual Banquet

Menasha—The annual banquet of the Alumni association of Menasha High school will be held at 6:30 Thursday night at Hotel Menasha. The senior class of 95 members, which will be graduated at exercises tonight at the school auditorium, will be welcomed into the alumni membership at the banquet.

The Rev. H. E. Mansfield of Al-

on earth, good will toward men, John Felch, Menasha Civil war veteran, attended the exercises but did not take part in the G. A. R. memorial service because of the heat. The service was read by Harold Bond, commander of Henry J. Leonard post of the American Legion.

Hot Temperatures Boost Prices of Wheat at Chicago

Quotations Hit New High For Season but Relapse Under Profit-Taking

Chicago—(P)—Hot temperatures in both winter and spring wheat areas and a downward revision in estimates of the domestic crop boosted prices 12 cents a bushel today to the season's best level.

Prices held up well during most of the session, but in the closing minutes profit-taking caused a reaction of about a cent. July wheat reached 79 1/2, September 79 1/2, and December 80 1/2, all equaling their season highs established last week.

Receipts were: wheat 20 cars, corn 376, oats 47.

Kansas City and Minneapolis scored new highs for the crop, with the latter market up nearly two cents at times.

Wheat here closed 1 1/2 higher, July 78 1/2, September 78 1/2, corn 1 1/2 to 1 1/2 up, soy beans 1 1/2 to 1 1/2 up, rye 1 1/2 up, hard unchanged to 2 cents lower.

TWO AGAINST LOVE

by Frances Hanna

farmer who certainly did not know his place. Of course he was rather good-looking in a brawny way, if one went in for stalwart he-men with cleft chins and eagle beaks. Well, she'd have to tell her guests, she decided grimly. She only hoped she could relate the story amusingly.

Yet, upon reaching the nearest table she perceived there would be no relating necessary, for old Talbot Mack was the center of an amused group who listened to his shrill, cackling voice with avid ears.

Someone had put a glass into his hand; another had set a platter of hors d'oeuvres within reach; and between eating and drinking he appeared to be having the time of his life. Spying Jocelyn, he called out:

"There, folks, what was I tellin' you? She's the spittin' image of her Grandma Josie! I'll bet she's got a red-headed temper, too! Tells a man black is white and makes him say 'tis, so's to get along with her! Come a mite near, Josie, I want a real good look at you."

Jocelyn, crimson with displeasure, approached. "Lordamighty!" he said softly. "She's even got that there widow's peak in the middle of her forehead just like her grandma's. Makes me think o' the time we was sittin' on the porch spoonin' in and Josie says . . ."

"Please, Mr. Mack," Jocelyn interrupted. "Your grandson has taken your family to the house and they are looking for you. I'm sure you are anxious to rest after such a tiresome journey."

A twinkle glinted in his eyes. "Now, Miss Josie, that's right kind of you, but I ain't a bit tired. Why, that there trip was fun for a old codger like me. I ain't used to settin' long in one place even if I did squat in Texas nigh onto twenty years. Guess I'd still be there if them danged bugs hadn't eaten the cotton up and if your grandma hadn't wanted us to come here and live with you folks. Why, before I went to Texas, I sailed all over this whole durned world. Yessir, this whole durned world. When your grandma run off with your grandpa I swore to never look at Boston again and I never did, but I shore looked at a lot o' other ports!" He winked meaningly at the young men crowded close. "Some mighty pretty gals in some o' them ports, too. I 'member a gal in Bombay . . ."

Dreadful Old Man
Jocelyn fled. What dreadful old man! She was on the verge of hysterical tears by the time she located Thorndyke in the billiard room. Pulling him into a deserted anteroom she half gasped, half sobbed what had happened.

"He . . . he's telling the most terrible things, Thorn! Ruining my party . . . oh, Thorn, do something!" Thorndyke's pale blue eyes glinted with indignation. "Come along with me, Lyn. I'll put him in his place."

Hilarious laughter greeted them when they stepped out on the terrace. It looked as if every person there had joined the audience around old Talbot Mack. Thorn-dyke, a look of pompous authority on his square face, pushed through followed by Jocelyn.

"Oh, Mr. Mack," she broke in on some involved story; "this is my brother Thorndyke."

"Howdy," grinned the old man, his eyes snapping with excitement. "You don't look a mile like your grandma, young man. Reckon you take after old Homer . . . old Poker Face we usta call him back in Boston. That's the trouble with Eng-lishmen . . . they ain't got no sense of humor. I was jest tellin' the folks here about the time your grandma and me went on a hayride . . ."

"I'm sure they aren't interested," Thorndyke cut in icily. "This is Jocelyn's party and she has already arranged entertainment for her guests."

"Oh, that's all right," the old man nodded. "I ain't got no special objections to high-falutin' singers. All the farms down in Texas have got radios nowadays. I sorta like that Lilypond gal . . . sounds like a bird."

While Thorndyke remained momentarily speechless, old Mack extracted a huge plug of tobacco from his hip pocket, inserted one corner of it into his mouth and bit off a chunk. "Guess none of you young fellows chew," he chuckled. "I've been goin' to quit but I reckon as how I never will. Don't enjoy it much, though, with these here false teeth I got over at Austin."

Jocelyn thought: "In one more second I shall scream!"
